Where I'm from

GOALS

- Interpret a bubble chart in an article
- Talk about moving to a new place
- Practise describing a neighbourhood
- Listen for signposts in a story
- Manage group conversations
- Write a travel plan

1 Work in pairs. Discuss the questions.

1 Look at the photo. What things in the photo would you also see where you live?
2 Is there anything you'd never see where you live?

WATCH

2 ▶ 6.1 Watch the video. Answer the questions.

1 What sort of place did Gena grow up in – a small town or a large city?
2 What does Rubén love doing in Madrid?
3 What does Gena love that's near her apartment?
4 What does Rubén love about Mexico City?

3 Make connections. Discuss the questions.

1 Is your home town more like Gena's or Rubén's?
2 What do you love about the place you live in now?
3 Is there anything you don't like about the place you live in now?

6A City life

LESSON GOALS
- Understand an article about a temporary city
- Recognize synonyms
- Interpret a bubble chart

READING

1 Work in pairs. Discuss the questions.
1 What's the biggest city you've ever visited or lived in?
2 What do cities need to provide for the people living there?

2 Read the article on page 13 quickly. Which of your ideas from Exercise 1 does it mention?

3 Look at the Reading skill box. Find synonyms in the article for the words in bold (1–4).

READING SKILL
Recognizing synonyms

A synonym is a word that has the same meaning as another word. Writers use them to avoid repeating the same words and to make their writing richer and more interesting. It's often possible to work out the meaning of unknown synonyms from the words around them.

For example, in these sentences, you can work out that urban area refers to the same idea as city and is therefore a synonym.

Creating the city requires more than a year of planning and preparation. Like any urban area, the Prayagraj Mela has its own government …

1 metropolis – _____
2 celebration – _____
3 gathering – _____
4 medical centre – _____

4 Read the article again. Choose the correct answer (a–c).
1 How many people were in Kumbh Mela tent city on its most crowded day in 2019?
a 120 million
b 30 million
c more than the population of Tokyo
2 What is an important part of every Kumbh Mela festival?
a listening to music
b dancing
c cleaning yourself
3 What did two people make an announcement about?
a lost people and things
b the schedule of performances
c warnings about traffic
4 What did the organizers provide in 2019?
a free food
b a tent for every visitor
c medical help
5 Which group of people was the largest in 2019?
a police officers
b cleaners
c healthcare professionals

5 Look at the Critical thinking skill box and the bubble chart on page 13. Answer the questions in the box.

CRITICAL THINKING SKILL
Interpreting bubble charts

A bubble chart is a simple way of comparing the size of numbers. Understanding what each bubble represents can help you understand the information more clearly. Ask:
- What information does it show? What do the numbers mean?
- What relationship does it show between the pieces of information?
- Why is a bubble chart a useful way to show this information?

6 Work in pairs. Look at the bubble chart again. How big would a bubble be representing the population of the city or town where you live?

SPEAKING

7 Work in groups. Discuss the questions.
1 What fact about Kumbh Mela is the most surprising to you?
2 Have you ever been to a large gathering such as a festival or a conference? What was it like?
3 What other large gatherings do you know about, either in your own city or country, or around the world?

EXPLORE MORE!

Choose a country and search online to find out the population of three cities from that country. How big would the bubbles be if you added them to the bubble chart on page 13?

The world's second largest city?

About 120 million people visited Kumbh Mela tent city over 49 days in 2019. There were 30 million there on the busiest day – not quite as many people as live in Tokyo, but more than every other city in the world. What makes this more amazing is that this [1]metropolis is temporary.

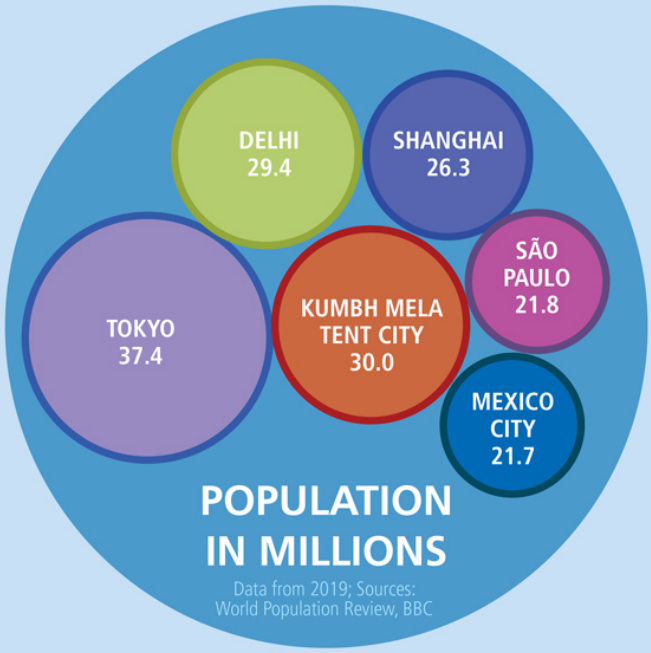
Every three years, a city of tents appears as part of the [2]celebration of Kumbh Mela at one of four places in India: Haridwar, Ujjain, Nashik or Prayagraj. The festival is believed to be the largest single [3]gathering in the world. One of the main activities is washing in the water of India's great rivers: the Ganges, the Shipra, the Jamuna or the Sarasvati, depending on the location of the meeting. There are also musical performances, dancing and a great variety of food to try.

Throughout the day and night, announcements over the speaker system reveal the human drama of life in the tent city. 'Whoever has taken my trousers, that were drying on my car,' a voice says, 'at least return the car keys from the pocket. You can keep the trousers.' And 'It is Babu speaking. I have lost my wallet and brother. Please come here the moment you hear this.'

Creating the city requires more than a year of planning and preparation. Like any urban area, the Prayagraj Mela has its own government – the Prayagraj Mela Authority – set up in 2017 to make sure that people's basic needs are met. Here's what they provided in 2019:

- 122,000 toilets
- 20,000 rubbish bins
- 300 kilometres of roads
- 524 buses
- more than 4,200 luxury tents
- more than 1,500 rickshaws (small taxis)

People coming for short stays usually bring their own meals, but the authorities supplied basic foods that visitors could buy at 160 'fair price' shops. Five temporary buildings in the city held more than 7,300 tonnes of flour – that's more than the weight of 1,800 elephants! In addition, they set up 160 stations to provide clean drinking water.



Like any big city, Kumbh Mela has a healthcare system. In 2019, this included a central [4]medical centre with 100 beds as well as ten smaller clinics. There were 86 ambulances, 9 river ambulances and 1 air ambulance. On busy days, a staff of 193 doctors and more than 1,500 other healthcare professionals treated 10,000 people.

Kumbh Mela also has a police department. In 2019, more than 30,000 police officers operated 40 police stations, directed traffic and worked to keep people safe. They watched the crowds with 1,000 CCTV cameras and, if necessary, guided people away from areas that were becoming too crowded.

And there were cleaners – 22,000 of them – to keep the city tidy.

Dr Ashok Kumar Paliwal, head of the health and family welfare team at the festival's hospital, appears to feel that the word 'city' may not be enough to describe Kumbh Mela. 'It's an ambitious project,' he says, searching for a bigger word than 'city'. 'What we are creating here is a country.'

6B I've been living in Mexico

LESSON GOAL
- Understand people talking about living in different countries
- Practise using the present perfect continuous
- Practise understanding weak auxiliary verbs

LISTENING AND GRAMMAR

1 Work in pairs. Discuss the questions.

1 Do you know anyone who doesn't live in the town/city they were born in? Where were they born? Where do they live now?
2 Why do you think people might move to a different town/city?

NATIONAL GEOGRAPHIC EXPLORERS

2 6.1 Listen to Rubén Salgado Escudero talking about moving countries. Answer the questions.

1 Where was he born? Where did he move to?
2 What are some things he learned there?
3 How often does he go home for a visit?

3 6.2 Now listen to Gena Steffens talking about moving countries. Answer the questions.

1 Where does she live now? When did she move there?
2 What does she love about moving to a new place?
3 What are some difficult things about moving to a new place?

4 Read the Grammar box. Change the example sentences to the present perfect simple. In pairs, say how this change affects the meaning.

GRAMMAR Present perfect continuous

Use the present perfect continuous (have/has been + -ing form):

- to talk about an action/event that began in the past and has continued or repeated until now and might still be happening.

I've been travelling back to visit once a year.

- to focus on the duration of an activity.

I've been living in Mexico for more than three years now.

- to focus on the action/situation in a recently completed action.

I've been practising and I've learned many new words and sayings.

Go to page 76 for the Grammar reference.

5 Complete the sentences with the present perfect continuous of the verbs.

1 I _____ (live) in this city for two years and I think I'll probably carry on living here for at least five more years.
2 I _____ (learn) to cook now that I don't have my parents cooking for me.
3 I _____ (try) to move my things from my parents' house since I moved out, but there are still lots of my things in their house.
4 My family _____ (ask) me to visit them more often.
5 I _____ (make) many new friends since I've moved here.

6 Look at the infographic on page 15. Choose the correct option or tick (✔) where both are possible.

1 There has been / has been being an increase in the percentage of people living in cities since 1950.
2 More people have chosen / have been choosing to live in cities. In 2018, more than half of the world's population were living in cities.
3 The majority of people living in Dubai have moved / have been moving there from abroad.
4 People from different countries have migrated / have been migrating to cities like Dubai and Sydney.

7 Work in pairs. What else can you say about the information presented in the infographic? Write three sentences describing what you see.

8 Use the words (1–4) to make sentences that are true for you. Use the present perfect continuous or present perfect simple.

1 think about moving
I've been thinking about moving to a different country since I graduated.
2 study English … since
3 consider learning a new language
4 live alone / with my parents / with friends … for MIGRATION

PRONUNCIATION

9 6.3 Look at the Clear voice box and listen to the examples. Notice the weak forms of have/has and been.

CLEAR VOICE

Understanding weak auxiliary verbs

Some people often weaken auxiliary verbs and it can be difficult to hear the present perfect continuous when words are weakened and shortened:

- have and has are often pronounced with a schwa, as /(h)əv/ and /(h)əs/.
- been is often shortened from /biːn/ to /bɪn/.

How long have you been living here?
She has been cooking spicy food for me.

10 6.4 Work in pairs. How might these sentences be pronounced with weak forms? Listen to check.

1 It has been increasing every year.
2 People have been coming from different countries.
3 I have been learning the local language.
4 You have been thinking about this.

SPEAKING

11 Work in small groups. Discuss the questions.

1 Do you prefer to live in a city or in the countryside? Why?
2 With more people working from home now, will they be able to live wherever they want? What are some advantages and disadvantages of that?

EXPLORE MORE!

How long have people been migrating to other countries? Find out more by searching online for 'history of migration'.

6C I lived in a suburb

LESSON GOAL
- Describe different neighbourhoods
- Listen for signposts in stories
- Describe movement
- Practise the sounds /l/ and /r/

SPEAKING

1 Work in small groups. Talk about the area that you grew up in.
- Where did you live?
- What kind of buildings were there?
- What kind of places did you go to?

VOCABULARY

2 6.5 Work in pairs. Complete the sentences with these words. Then listen to check.

chain stores district harbour hostels monument neighbourhood office blocks shopping mall stalls suburbs

1 We like spending our weekends at the _____ because there are shops, restaurants and a cinema all under one roof.
2 There are _____ in the city centre for backpackers and travellers who don't want to pay lots of money for a hotel.
3 Many people who work in Tokyo don't live in central Tokyo. They live in the _____ – areas outside a city with lots of houses for people to live in.
4 When we travel, we often see the same _____ that are in our city selling the same clothes – it's a bit boring.
5 The entertainment _____ is often quiet during the day, but it comes alive in the evening.
6 There's a farmers' market in the town square every Saturday and you can buy fresh fruit from the market _____ there.
7 There is a huge _____ in the city centre to the first president of our country.
8 I like walking to the _____ and watching the boats and ships there.
9 The people in my _____ are very friendly.
10 The _____ are very quiet at night because everyone goes home after work.

Go to page 73 for the Vocabulary reference.

LISTENING

3 6.6 Listen to Leonora and Yongsheng sharing childhood stories. Are these sentences a part of Leonora's story (L) or Yongsheng's story (Y)?

1 He/She lived in a suburb.
2 He/She lived near a market.
3 He/She was walking to his/her friend's house.
4 He/She was on his/her bicycle.
5 He/She went across the road.
6 He/She climbed up a tree.
7 He/She thought he/she saw some wild animals.
8 He/She thought an animal was following him/her.

4 Look at the Listening skill box. In pairs, think of other signposts you can use when telling a story.

LISTENING SKILL
Listening for signposts

When someone is telling a story, they might use certain words or phrases that can help you follow the story. For example:

Once / There was once → This is the beginning of my story.

One day / One evening / The next day → This helps you follow the order of what happened.

Well, … → I'm going to begin a long turn, so listen carefully.

Anyway, … → I'd like to stop talking about this and go back to what I was saying before.

5 6.6 Listen again. In pairs, match the signposts that Leonora and Yongsheng use (1–5) with the meanings (a–e).

1 It's a funny story, actually.
2 Well*, I used to live in a …*
3 Anyway, I climbed up a tree.
4 At that time*, I didn't know this.*
5 So, there was this cute cat.

a Let's stop talking about the other topic and get back to the story.
b But of course, I know this now.
c I've just explained about the cat.
d Are you ready to hear this? Here we go …
e I'd like to tell you this story and I'd like you to be interested in it.

Colourful houses in Cape Town, South Africa.

GRAMMAR AND PRONUNCIATION

6 Read the Grammar box and the paragraph below. Underline the descriptions of movement.

GRAMMAR Describing movement

Use a verb of movement + adverb to describe the way someone or something is moving.
I climbed down really quietly.
Use a verb of movement + preposition to describe the direction of movement.
I jumped over the fence.
I went through a tunnel.
Use a verb of movement + adverb + preposition to describe both the manner and the direction of movement.
I walked very quickly towards my friend's house.

Go to page 76 for the Grammar reference.

Once, I was walking along the main road when I thought I saw my schoolfriend in front of me. I ran towards her, waved excitedly at her and then gave her a big hug. But it wasn't my friend at all! I turned around quickly and walked away from the confused girl. I was so embarrassed, but my friend thought it was very funny when I told her about it.

7 Choose the correct option to complete the sentences.

1 Drive slowly / gently away from the train station to / towards the shopping mall and you'll see my house.
2 To get to my school, walk across / through the market and then cross over / along the road.
3 I often cycle by / towards a main road and there are lots of cars driving very quickly / quietly.
4 There was no bridge, so we couldn't go across to / away from the other side.

8 6.7 Look at the Clear voice box. Listen and repeat.

CLEAR VOICE
Saying /l/ and /r/

When making the /l/ sound, the end of the tongue rises to press against the roof of the mouth, just behind the teeth.
When making the /r/ sound, the end of the tongue is down and the mid/back part of the tongue rises.

6D Managing group conversations

LESSON GOAL
- Talk about difficulties in group conversations
- Learn ways to manage group conversations
- Practise dealing with group conversations

People chatting in the streets of Ho Chi Minh City, Vietnam.

SPEAKING

1 Work in pairs. Have you ever been in a group conversation where you felt like you couldn't follow the conversation? Answer the questions.

1 Who was in that conversation and what were they talking about?
2 Why do you think you felt like you couldn't follow the conversation?
3 What did you do when this happened?

2 Work in pairs. Read the story about Natalia and answer questions 1–4.

Natalia has been meeting up with Killian every week to practise chatting in English. She finds it easy to understand Killian's English and really enjoys their conversations. She told him that she'd love to know more people she could speak English with. So one day, Killian introduced her to his English friends. Natalia was very excited, but she soon started feeling lost during their conversations. When they were speaking about the television programmes they watched and the snacks they ate when they were children, Natalia found it hard to follow what they were saying and believed it was because her grammar and her vocabulary weren't good enough. She became less confident about her English and was very quiet during these conversations.

1 Why did Natalia feel lost during the group conversations?
2 What did she think was the reason for this?
3 Why do you think Natalia was able to understand so much during her conversations with Killian but not during her conversations with his friends?
4 Have you ever lost confidence in your English like Natalia? What happened?

MY VOICE

3 ▶ 6.2 Watch the video about group conversations. Complete the notes.

Why group conversations can be difficult

1 Everyone is _____ about something you know _____ about.
2 There are more _____, more _____ and more people talking at the _____ time.
3 Everyone in the group is _____ in their own way.
4 It feels like there are more people _____ us.

4 ▶ 6.2 Watch again. Are these sentences true (T) or false (F)?

1 If you spoke excellent English, you'd have no problems understanding group conversations.
2 It's easier to control the direction of a group conversation than a one-to-one conversation.
3 If you're unfamiliar with a topic, you should ask questions and help others notice that you don't understand what they're saying.
4 It can be easier to hide and say nothing in a group conversation than compete for the chance to speak.
5 The different communication styles and different relationships people have with each other can make group conversations hard to understand.

5 Look at the Communication skill box. Which of the four issues in Exercise 3 can each of these tips solve?

COMMUNICATION SKILL
Managing group conversations

- Listen and watch. Learn the rules of the group.
- Ask questions when you don't understand. Help them notice that you're not following the conversation.
- Plan what you want to say and wait for the right moment. If you can't find the right moment, try to link what they're saying to what you want to talk about.
- Remember: Group conversations can be very difficult for many different reasons. If you can't follow the conversation, the issue might not be your language skills.

6 6.8 Work in pairs. Listen to Natalia describing four situations (A–D) that are making her feel uncomfortable. Answer the questions.

1 What's making these group conversations difficult for Natalia?
2 What advice could you give Natalia in each situation?

7 6.8 Work in pairs. Look at the Useful language box and listen to situations A and B again. Which of these phrases could Natalia use in these situations?

Useful language Managing group conversations

Showing you're not familiar with the topic
What's (Blue Peter)? Sorry, I don't know what that is.
Can I get you to explain (smart technology) a bit more? I'm afraid I'm a bit lost.

That's interesting. I've also heard that …

Involving quieter members of the group
Was it the same for you?
What about you?
What do you think? Do you agree?
I really want to hear what (Hilmi) thinks about this.

SPEAKING

8 OWN IT! Work in groups of four. Roleplay situations 1–3, taking turns to be 'you'. Use the Communication skill and Useful language to deal with the situations.

1 Everyone is talking about a popular place in town that they all know. You are the only person who doesn't know what they're talking about.
2 Everyone is talking about their favourite food. They're speaking quickly and there's a lot of interruption in the group. You really want to tell them about your favourite food.
3 Everyone is talking about the people in their family except one quiet member of your group. You notice this and try to include that person.

9 Work in small groups. Discuss the questions.

1 Which of these do you prefer when talking in your first language and why?
   a one-to-one conversations b talking in small groups
   c talking in large groups
2 Do you feel the same when talking in English?
3 What have you learned in this lesson that might improve how you manage group conversations?

6E You're coming to my home town!

LESSON GOAL
- Describe steps in a plan
- Put activities in time order
- Write a suggested travel plan

SPEAKING

1 Work in pairs. If you had one day to spend in an unfamiliar city, how would you plan what to do? What are some advantages and disadvantages of these options (a–f)?

a look online for information about what to do there b read a guidebook
c ask friends who've been there on holiday d ask friends who've lived there e ask someone in the travel industry
f not plan anything in advance – I love an adventure

READING FOR WRITING

2 Read the travel plan on the right and answer the questions.

1 How long will Jana be in Málaga for?
2 Why doesn't Manuel take Jana to those places himself?
3 Is Manuel's one-day tour of Málaga a tour you might like to do? What would you enjoy? What would you do differently?

3 In pairs, look at these activities (a–e). In what order does Manuel suggest Jana do them?

a Go to the Roman Theatre
b Go to a restaurant at the port c Go to a café on Calle Alcazabilla d Go to the Picasso museum
e Go to Malagueta beach

4 Look at the Writing skill box. How many signposts can you find in Manuel's suggested travel plan?

WRITING SKILL
Describing steps in a plan

When writing a plan, it is important to clearly show the order of events.

By using signposts such as to start, after that and while, you can make the order of the plan clearer to the reader.

Put each new point or new activity in a new paragraph so that the plan is easy to read.

Hi Jana

I'm so pleased to hear that you're going to be in my home town! I haven't been living in Málaga for the last three years, but I'll try my best to suggest a one-day tour.

To start your day, try to get to the city centre at about 9 a.m. for some churros (Spanish doughnuts) and a hot chocolate or a coffee.

After that, take a nice long walk around the streets of the old town. On the way there, you'll see street performers along Calle Marqués de Larios. There are many old buildings and monuments in the old town that you'll love. You must see the Roman Theatre. It's the oldest historic monument in Málaga and has some great views, so you won't want to miss it.

At this point, you might be tired, so stop in one of the cafés on Calle Alcazabilla.

Málaga is a city rich with art and culture. So while you're there, you must go to at least one of the many museums. There's the Carmen Thyssen Museum, the Revello de Toro Museum and many more. But the one I'd recommend is the Picasso Málaga Museum. It has 285 of Picasso's works and I think you'll like it there.

Lunchtime is usually between 2 and 4 p.m. in Spain. For lunch, I would go to a chiringuito (a small bar selling tapas) on Malagueta beach for some sardines and fried fish. After lunch, enjoy the sunshine and take a nap on the beach or have a swim.

Later in the evening, you can have dinner at one of the many restaurants at the port. And then you can end the day enjoying a drink on one of the many roof terraces in Málaga and taking in the amazing night views.

There are so many things to do in Málaga, but if I had only a day, these are the things I would do. It's a pity I don't live there anymore or I'd love to show you around.

I hope you enjoy your trip and do let me know what you think of Málaga!

Take care

Useful language Putting activities in time order

To start your day, (have churros in a café).
After that, (take a long walk …).
Then, (walk towards the Roman Theatre).
At this point, (you might be tired).
While you're there, (you must go to ...).
Next, (go to the Roman Theatre).
Later in the (evening), (you can have dinner …).
You can end the day (enjoying a drink).

Which of these phrases can you use …

1 at the beginning of your suggested travel plan?
2 to signal the next activity?
3 to signal an activity you should do at the same time as another activity?
4 to signal the time of the day to do an activity?
5 to suggest the last activity in the plan?

WRITING TASK

6 A friend has asked you to suggest a one-day tour of your town/city. Make notes for 1–2. You can write about the town/city you live in or a town/city you used to live in.

1 What places and activities would you like to suggest? Try to include at least four ideas.
2 Then put the places and activities in order using signposting language from the Writing skill box.

7 WRITE Using your notes from Exercise 6, write your suggested travel plan.

8 CHECK Use the checklist. Your travel plan …

- ☐ describes at least four places to visit.
- ☐ includes signposting language to signal the first activity in the plan.
- ☐ uses signposting language to clarify the order of the activities.
- ☐ has a new paragraph for each activity.
- ☐ clearly signals the last activity in the plan.

9 REVIEW Work in pairs. Read your partner's travel plan. Would you like to do these things? Does the order of the activities make sense? Is there anything you'd change?

Balance

GOALS

- Identify supporting reasons in an advice column
- Talk about the future
- Talk about managing money
- Identify supporting information in a podcast
- Deal with different ways of processing information
- Write a pros and cons essay

1 Work in pairs. Discuss the questions.

1 Look at the photo. Where is the person in the photo?
2 What is he doing? How do you think he feels?

1 In what areas of your life do you try to achieve a balance?
2 How do you try to achieve this balance?
3 Do you have any tips for achieving balance you can share?

7A Balancing time

LESSON GOALS
- Understand an advice column about time management
- Identify supporting reasons
- Categorize ideas

READING

1 Work in pairs. Answer the questions.

1 What are some of your jobs or responsibilities at home, at work, in your studies, etc.?
I have to tidy up, answer emails, …
2 What are some things you like doing for fun?
I like going out with friends, listening to music, …
3 Do you have enough time to do everything on both lists? If not, how much extra time would you like in one week?

2 Read the advice column on page 25. Number these topics in the order they appear in the text.

a The best way to plan the things you need to do b How to deal with things that make it hard for us to concentrate c How much time you should work before resting and how long you should rest d Problems that result from not working efficiently

3 Look at the Reading skill box. Then read the advice column again and answer questions 1–4.

READING SKILL
Identifying supporting reasons

Writers often support their ideas with reasons – explanations of why something is true or correct. Identifying reasons helps you better understand the relationship between ideas. Words or phrases that signal reasons include the reason, one of the reasons, because (of) and since. The reason may appear before or after the action or effect.

1 Why does the person with the time-management problem take work home?
2 Why should you stand up and move around when you take a microbreak?
3 Why does a to-do list reduce stress?
4 For what reason may we lose up to forty per cent of our productive time?

SPEAKING

4 Look at the Critical thinking skill box. Put the ideas (a–i) into the best category (1–3).

Categorizing

Categories are useful for seeing the connections between ideas. They can help us understand ideas better, organize them in our minds and remember them more clearly.

You can categorize ideas by thinking about how they're useful or important. For example, it may be easier to remember nine tips for managing your time if you break them down into three categories:

1 Tips for organization
2 Tips for managing stress and tiredness
3 Tips for focusing your attention

This helps you notice not only the idea itself, but the reason it might be useful or important.

a Don't work late into the night.
b Find a quiet place to work.
c Take microbreaks frequently.
d Decide which tasks are the most important.
e Switch off your phone and put it away.
f Get plenty of sleep.
g Schedule a time to do work.
h Do one task at a time.
i Write a specific to-do list.

5 Work in pairs. Can you add any tips of your own to any of the categories in Exercise 4?

6 Work in pairs. Discuss the questions. Give reasons for your answers.

1 Which of the tips in Exercise 4 do you already follow?
Since I'm a teacher, I schedule all of my work. Classes happen at a certain time.
2 Are there any you don't follow?
At work, I can't find a quiet place to work because my desk is in a noisy office, and I have to be there.

OUR EXPERT'S ADVICE:

Work smarter, not harder

The problem I like my desk job in a busy office, but sometimes there aren't enough hours in the work day! Since I often don't finish tasks by home time, I take work home. Too often I don't see friends or spend time with my partner because I have to work. I think I would have more free time if I could find a way to work more efficiently. Do you have any practical suggestions?

Our expert replies This seems to be a pretty common problem these days and work–life balance is so important. I can't give you more hours in a day, but I can make three practical suggestions that may help you do more in less time.

1 Try taking microbreaks

When you stop work for a minute or two to say hello to a colleague or just to rest your brain, you're taking a 'microbreak'. Research in Germany showed that a five-minute break every half hour reduced stress levels. On top of that, researchers in the US and Singapore found that social microbreaks helped to increase workers' happiness. They also discovered that workers who were normally bored at work became more motivated and did their job better after taking a social microbreak. How long should you work between breaks? Exactly 52 minutes, according to another study.

Because the most effective microbreaks include a change in your body position, if you've been sitting, you should stand up and move around to give both your mind and your body a change. But even a simple action such as looking out of the window can leave you more relaxed and better able to concentrate.

2 Keep a 'to-do' list – and follow it

A to-do list is powerful for three reasons. First, it reduces stress because it helps you see what's important (and what's not). Second, it gives you a plan for what to do and in what order. Third, it shows what you've achieved at the end of the day – which makes you feel good. When you make a list, be specific about what you want to do and break large tasks down into smaller steps. Instead of 'presentation', for example, write 'finish preparing presentation slides'. Be realistic about what you can do in a day and don't put too many or too few items on the list. Finally, make sure your to-do list includes breaks.

3 Focus!

The average person checks their smartphone 58 times per day – thirty times during work hours – and research shows that just having a smartphone on your desk reduces your ability to concentrate. If the phone is switched on, we can lose up to forty per cent of our productive time because of the constant pings announcing new text messages, emails or 'Likes' on social media. So, if you don't already, put your phone on 'silent'. Letting yourself think about just one thing will allow you to work better and faster.

Leaving work at the office isn't always easy, but by using a few tricks to work smarter, you can get more done in your working hours and have more time to enjoy relaxing with friends and family.

7C A balanced budget

LESSON GOALS
- Talk about money
- Practise saying the letter r
- Identify supporting information in a podcast
- Practise verb patterns with infinitive or -ing

SPEAKING

1 Work in small groups. Read the quotations about money. What do they mean? Do you agree with them?

> 'No, not rich. I am a poor man with money, which is not the same thing.' – Gabriel García Márquez

> 'Friends and good manners will carry you where money won't go.' – Margaret Walker

VOCABULARY AND PRONUNCIATION

2 7.5 Read the advice. Match the words in bold (1–10) with the definitions (a–j). Then listen to check.

> Money can cause a lot of worry, but simple [1]financial planning can help reduce worry. Here's one simple idea: if you don't have a [2]budget, make one. This is a list of money you earn, such as the [3]salary you get, and the money you spend, including living [4]expenses like your rent or [5]mortgage payments, bills, food and money you pay back on a [6]loan for a car or other expensive item. It also includes [7]luxuries such as meals out or trips to the cinema. Keeping a record of how much you earn and spend makes it easy to see where you [8]waste money. It can also help you decide how much money you can [9]afford to save each month. If you saved just $10 each month, it could easily [10]be worth $1,500 after ten years.

a money you receive for work
b related to money
c things you don't need that give you pleasure d a plan that shows how much money you expect to earn and spend over a period of time e use more than you need f money you spend for a particular purpose g have a value in money
h have enough money for something i money you've borrowed from a bank
j an agreement with the bank to lend you money to buy a house or flat

Go to page 73 for the Vocabulary reference.

3 7.6 Look at the Clear voice box. Listen and repeat. How do you usually say the words afford and earn – with or without the /r/ sound?

CLEAR VOICE
Saying the letter r

Some people say /r/ in words only when there is a vowel sound after it, either in the same word or the next word. In other words, they don't say the /r/.

no /r/ sound: afford /əˈfɔːd/, earn /ɜːn/with /r/ sound: afford /əˈfɔrd/, earn /ɜrn/

Research shows that it can be easier to understand a person's accent if they usually say /r/.

4 7.7 Listen and repeat both ways of saying each word.

1 number
2 car
3 worth
4 credit card
5 mortgage

LISTENING

5 7.8 Listen to the podcast about money. Number the topics (a–c) in the order you hear them.

a How to create a budget
b The 50–30–20 rule
c Borrowing and credit cards

6 7.8 Look at the Listening skill box. Try to complete the notes and the pie chart on page 29. Then listen again to check.

LISTENING SKILL
Identifying supporting information

When a speaker makes a claim, pay attention to how it is supported. Listen for details and examples, such as:

- Facts or statistics: Fifty per cent of the people …
- Common sense: It's clear that …
- Examples: For example/instance, …
- Informed opinion: According to …

7 Work in pairs. Do you think the podcast gives good advice? Why? / Why not?

How can we avoid getting into trouble with money?

Go to page 78 for the Grammar reference.

How I'm going to balance my budget

- Start [1]_____ (save) a little money every month.
- Avoid [2]_____ (use) my credit card for daily expenses.
- Try [3]_____ (find) ways to cut spending on needs.
- Before buying new clothes, ask: 'Do I really need [4]_____ (buy) this?'
- Stop [5]_____ (take) taxis to work and try [6]_____ (use) the bus instead.
- Before going to a restaurant, ask: 'Can I really afford [7]_____ (pay) for this?'
- Remember [8]_____ (follow) my budget!

7D Understanding ways of processing information

LESSON GOALS

- Learn about how culture influences how we process information
- Understand different ways of processing information
- Practise talking to people who process information in different ways

SPEAKING

1 Work in pairs. Discuss the questions.

1 Have you ever spoken to someone who didn't answer your questions directly? How did you feel? Why do you think they did that?
2 Have you ever spoken to someone who was too focused on specific details and missed the big picture? How did you feel? Why do you think they did that?

2 Do the quiz below. Then compare your answers with a partner before checking your scores on page 85.

MY VOICE

3 ▶ 7.2 Watch the video about two ways of processing information. Would sentences 1–2 be said by a Whole-to-Part (W) thinker or a Part-to-Whole (P) thinker?

1 There were more than five fish swimming around in the tank.
2 There was a frog next to a big rock and lots of plants in the tank. It looked like a comfortable home for the fish.

Quiz

1 When you write your name, your surname comes ... a first. b last.

2 When you write your address, your street name comes ... a before the name of your town/city.
b after the name of your town/city.

3 Think about a profile picture that you use online. Which is it more like?

a Mostly your face b Mostly the place you're in 4 When you have a headache or a stomach ache, the first thing you think of is ... a making it stop.

b improving your general health.

5 Look at this photo for five seconds. Then cover it and make notes for one minute about what you saw in the photo.

a You made notes about the fields below, the trees, the green grass and the relationships between the people.
b In your notes, you started by describing the people, the colours of their clothes and the food they're eating.

4 ▶ 7.2 Watch again. Then in pairs, say what the video tells us about:

1 The way we write our address
2 The order of our name
3 Looking for the cause of a problem
4 How a Part-to-Whole thinker might feel when talking to a Whole-to-Part thinker
5 How a Whole-to-Part thinker might feel when talking to a Part-to-Whole thinker

5 Look at the Communication skill box. Work in pairs. How can these tips help us when speaking to someone with a different way of processing information from our own?

COMMUNICATION SKILL
Understanding ways of processing information

Sometimes, you may find yourself talking to someone who processes information in a different way to you. For example, they might use a Whole-to-Part way of thinking, while you might use a Part-to-Whole way of thinking.

Try to notice how they might be processing information and consider these tips:

- Be patient.
- Listen and ask questions.
- Try to see things from their point of view.
- If they're Whole-to-Part thinkers, make connections between what they're saying and the main topic.
- If they're Part-to-Whole thinkers, help them see the connections you notice by discussing them.

SPEAKING

6 OWN IT! Work in pairs. Look at what Akira and Mikayla said. What do you think are the reasons behind these problems? What advice could you give Akira and Mikayla?

'I can't understand the instructions that my teacher gives sometimes. Yesterday, she said she wanted my help. She asked me to find out what devices my classmates have at home, but I don't know why she's asking me to do this. What does she want to do with this information? Is this something I'm doing for the class or for her? None of this makes sense to me.'

Akira

'Karima really annoys me sometimes! I told her about the argument I had with Jay. I was talking to Jay about maybe going back to university and he just kept looking at his phone. It's like he wasn't interested. So I got angry and Jay walked out of the house. I told Karima he's a selfish person, but Karima kept saying 'maybe Jay was tired because he'd just come home from work' and 'maybe Jay was looking at something important on his phone' … Why is she taking his side?!'

Mikayla

7 Look at the Useful language box. In pairs, say which of these phrases might be useful …

a when a Whole-to-Part thinker is talking to a Part-to-Whole thinker.
b when a Part-to-Whole thinker is talking to a Whole-to-Part thinker.

Useful language Talking to people with different ways of processing information

Asking about connections between things
I'm afraid I don't get the connection between (your grandfather) and (Japanese food).
I'm a bit confused. What has (your grandfather) got to do with (Japanese food)?
I'm not sure I understand how this relates to everything else / what we're talking about.

Looking at the big picture
On the whole, we can see …
What do you think might be the impact on everything else?
I'm not sure if it's that simple. Have you considered the possibility that …

Clarifying what you're saying
I think there are some things we need to consider before we can talk about that.
Before I come to that, let me first talk about the background to this.
I think it'd be good for me to explain the situation to you first.

8 Work in pairs. Roleplay the two situations in Exercise 6, taking turns to be Student A. Use the Communication skill and the Useful language to improve the communication for Akira/Mikayla.

Student A: Akira / Mikayla
Student B: Akira's teacher / Karima

7E Pros and cons

LESSON GOALS
- Learn to use an essay outline to write a pros and cons essay
- Practise thinking about a topic from different points of view
- Write a pros and cons essay

SPEAKING

1 Work in pairs. Read the text. How different are Jonah's and Naomi's ways of presenting their opinions?

Zaina tells Jonah and Naomi that more and more people are exercising to YouTube videos instead of going to the gym. Jonah thinks that exercising at home to a video would never be as good as going to the gym and tells his friends exactly why he feels strongly about this. Naomi, on the other hand, starts to talk about the advantages and disadvantages of home exercise videos, and the advantages and disadvantages of going to a gym, before coming to a conclusion of her own.

2 Work in pairs. Read essay outlines A and B. Then answer these questions.

1 Which of these two outlines is similar to the way Jonah presented his opinion?
2 Which one is similar to how Naomi presented her opinion?
3 Which essay might be a more balanced presentation of both sides of the argument?

Essay outline A
- Introduction – Introduce the topic and explain how you'll be looking at the pros and cons of this issue.
- Positive Point 1
  Positive Point 2
- Negative Point 1
  Negative Point 2
- Conclusion – Summarize what you've written. State your opinion on the topic.

Essay outline B
- Introduction – Introduce the topic and state your opinion on it.
- Point 1 to support your opinion
  Point 2 to support your opinion
- Something other people might say and why you disagree
  Another thing other people might say and why you disagree
- Conclusion – Summarize what you've written. Restate your opinion and why you believe it's true.

READING FOR WRITING

3 Read the essay about exercise videos on page 33. Choose the correct option (a–d) to answer the questions.

1 The essay topic is probably …
  a Gyms should be free for everyone. Do you agree?
  b Everyone should have their own gyms at home. Do you agree?
  c Online exercise videos should come with personal advice. Do you agree? d Using online exercise videos to keep fit is better than going to the gym. Do you agree?
2 The author …
  a doesn't have an opinion on this subject.
  b thinks that the equipment in a gym is better.
  c believes that online exercise videos are useful.
  d feels that no one should exercise at home without proper advice from an expert.

Exercise videos have been around for a long time. However, since exercise videos have started appearing online, most people can now access them easily to get fit. Even so, some people say exercise videos should not replace proper instruction at a gym.

One advantage of online exercise videos is that they are free and convenient. You do not have to pay for a gym membership or expensive exercise equipment. You just need a WiFi connection and you can start exercising anywhere and anytime you like. Also, there are plenty of choices of exercise videos online. You might decide on a more relaxing yoga or Pilates class or go for a more high-energy Zumba workout. You can choose to strengthen your arms, your legs or your stomach muscles.

However, some people might find this wide range of choices confusing. They might not know how to choose the right video to suit their needs. In a gym, you could get advice on what exercises you need to do and how to do it correctly. But at home, it is possible for you to keep doing an exercise incorrectly because you don't have an expert around to correct you.

There are many pros and cons to online exercise videos, but I strongly believe that the pros outweigh the cons. People who are unable to go to the gym now have the option of getting fit at home whenever they want, and some exercise is definitely better than no exercise at all.

4 Look at the Writing skill box. Then answer questions 1–5 using the model essay above and the essay outlines in Exercise 2.

WRITING SKILL
Using an outline for a pros and cons essay

After brainstorming, an essay outline can help you organize your thoughts. When writing your outline, you can choose the main points that you'll be including in your essay and develop your paragraphs in a way that makes sense.

1 Does the model essay follow the structure of outline A or outline B?
2 What information does the introduction contain?
3 What are two advantages of online exercise videos?
4 What are two disadvantages of online exercise videos?
5 What information does the conclusion contain?

5 Look at the Useful language box. Find examples of some of this language in the model essay.

Useful language Writing a pros and cons essay

Introducing a point
One advantage of (exercise videos) is …
First of all, (exercise videos are popular) because …
Some people say/believe that …

Showing contrast
However, …
On the other hand, …
People who disagree may say/believe that …

Considering both points of view
There are many pros and cons to (exercise videos).
While (exercise videos may be convenient), (there are also some disadvantages).
I (strongly) believe the cons outweigh the pros.

WRITING TASK

6 Work in pairs. Choose two of the three essay topics and note down different points of view for each topic.
1 Now that we can shop online, we never need to go to the shops again. Do you agree?
2 Everyone should work from home if they can. Do you agree?
3 Every child should have their own mobile device. Do you agree?

7 Choose one of your two essay topics and write your essay outline. Pick two pros and two cons and use an outline from Exercise 2 to help you.

8 WRITE Write a pros and cons essay of about 250 words. Use your essay outline from Exercise 7 and the Useful language to help you.

9 CHECK Use the checklist. You …
- ☐ used an essay outline to help your writing.
- ☐ included an introduction paragraph.
- ☐ described different points of view.
- ☐ summarized both points of view in the conclusion.
- ☐ stated/restated your opinion in the conclusion.

10 REVIEW Work in pairs. Read your partner's essay. Is their essay a balanced presentation of both sides of the argument? Why? / Why not?

Essentials

GOALS

- Recognize ellipsis in an article
- Discuss the environmental impact of clothes shopping
- Describe different types of food
- Activate vocabulary before listening
- Understand different ways of giving and receiving feedback
- Write a blog post about essential skills

1 Work in pairs. Discuss the questions.

1 Look at the photo. What do you think the woman is carrying in the luggage on the back of her motorbike?
2 Have you ever travelled and had to fit a few possessions into a suitcase or backpack? Where did you go? What did you take with you?

WATCH

2 ▶ 8.1 Watch the video. Answer the questions.

2 What two things does he mention that have a lot of different uses?
3 What's important for Mary to do when she travels?
4 What three things is Mary talking about when she says 'practical things'?

3 Make connections. Discuss the questions.

1 If you were packing for a year away, would you take any of the items Rubén and Mary talked about?
2 What other items would you take?

8A I really missed good coffee

LESSON GOALS
- Understand an article about life on the International Space Station
- Recognize ellipsis
- Personalize the ideas in an article

READING

1 Work in pairs. Discuss the questions.

1 What foods or drinks would you really miss if you couldn't have them?
2 What favourite things do you use often that you wouldn't want to stop using?

2 Read the article on page 37. Which paragraph (1–5) describes each of the following?

a special things that astronauts only occasionally receive in space
b things that can only be found on Earth, not on the ISS
c things that make life on the ISS challenging d what astronauts want when their mission is over e a machine that was added to the ISS to make astronauts more comfortable

3 Read the article again. Are these sentences true (T) or false (F)?

1 Astronauts are often hungry because of limited food on the ISS.
2 Families usually include fresh fruit in the 'care packages' they send.
3 Before 2015, astronauts only had instant coffee on the ISS.
4 Scott Kelly says that parts of the ISS are painted green to make astronauts more comfortable.
5 Astronauts rarely have pizza on the ISS.

4 Work in pairs. Would you like to live for a month on the ISS? Why? / Why not?

5 Look at the Reading skill box. Then complete sentences 1–5 with the words that the writer has left out.

READING SKILL
Recognizing ellipsis

Writers sometimes leave out certain words to improve the flow of the text. This is called ellipsis. For example:

There's plenty of healthy food on the ISS, but it's mostly not fresh – [the food is] prepared on Earth, packaged and sent into space.

1 Clothing is limited and _____ can't be washed, so _____ must be worn for several days.
2 It's hard, but _____ an amazing experience.
3 These 'care packages' measure 23 x 42 x 25 centimetres and _____ have a maximum weight of 5 kilograms.
4 While _____ there, he said, the only thing from Earth he really missed was espresso.
5 Scott Kelly missed nature and _____ being able to go outside.

SPEAKING

6 Look at the Critical thinking skill box. Astronaut 'care packages' measure 23 x 42 x 25 centimetres and have a maximum weight of 5 kilograms. What would you ask for in a care package? Make a list.

CRITICAL THINKING SKILL
Personalizing

It's sometimes possible to understand information more deeply by thinking specifically about how ideas might relate to you and your life. Ask:
- What would I do in this situation?
- Are my own ideas the same as those in the text or are they different?
- Why might my ideas be different or the same?

7 Answer the questions. Write notes.

1 Are the things you would want in your care package the same as those mentioned in the article?
2 Why are your ideas of things to include in the package the same or different?

8 Work in pairs or small groups. Explain your answers to Exercise 7.

I like chocolate, so I'd probably ask for that, but paper books are too big. Instead, I'd choose …

Hot showers and good coffee

What astronauts miss when working in space

European Space Agency astronaut Samantha Cristoforetti enjoys her first drink from the ISSpresso machine.

[1] Life on the International Space Station (ISS) isn't comfortable. There are no showers, so astronauts must wash with very little water using a small cloth. Clothing is limited and can't be washed, so must be worn for several days. There's plenty of healthy food on the ISS, but it's mostly not fresh – prepared on Earth, packaged and sent into space, heated if necessary, then opened and eaten. Even so, the astronauts love living on the ISS. It's hard, but an amazing experience. But it also makes them very aware of simple needs and pleasures.

[2] About four times a year, astronauts on the ISS receive a bag containing a few items sent from Earth by their families, delivered by spaceship. These 'care packages' measure 23 x 42 x 25 centimetres and have a maximum weight of 5 kilograms. Astronauts ask for items such as chocolate, sweets, cheese and traditional books made of paper, which provide a rest from looking at electronic screens. In addition to the care packages, the spaceship deliveries to the ISS also include fresh fruit and vegetables sent by the space-station support teams on the ground, which the astronauts are always delighted to receive.

[3] Italian astronaut Luca Parmitano spent 166 days working on the ISS. While there, he said, the only thing from Earth he really missed was espresso – strong, dark coffee. He wasn't the first space traveller to wish for better hot drinks. Astronauts forced to drink instant coffee had dreamed for years of something better. It finally became a reality on 3rd May 2015, when another Italian astronaut – Samantha Cristoforetti – made the first cup of espresso in space. The espresso machine was provided by the Italian Space Agency, who worked closely with the Lavazza coffee company and an aerospace engineering company to design and build it.

[4] But there are some things that can't be sent to the ISS. Scott Kelly spent a total of 520 days in space, with one mission lasting a whole year. He said he missed nature and being able to go outside, 'the colour green, the smell of fresh dirt, and the feel of warm sun on my face.' He adds, 'My colleagues liked to play a recording of Earth sounds, like birds and rustling trees, and even mosquitoes, over and over. It brought me back to Earth.'

[5] Steven Vander Ark is responsible for helping astronauts prepare for long missions on the ISS. He says that when in space, they spend a lot of time thinking about the first meal they'll have when they return home. 'We often hear that pizza, ice cream and fizzy drinks are what astronauts miss most. But beyond food, what we hear most is that as soon as they get back on the ground, astronauts want a hot shower and hugs from their families.'

8B Clothes that we don't need

LESSON GOALS
- Understand someone talking about an infographic
- Learn to use defining and non-defining relative clauses
- Notice elision in words with th
- Talk about the impact of clothing waste

LISTENING AND GRAMMAR

1 Work in pairs. Discuss the questions.

1 How many pieces of clothing do you think you own?
2 Fast fashion refers to inexpensive fashionable clothes that are designed and made very quickly. How much of the clothing you buy is fast fashion?

2 Work in pairs. Look at the infographic below. What do these numbers represent?

a 80,000,000,000
b 10 c 5, 1980
d 7
e 50%
f 2,100,000,000,000

80 billion pieces of clothing are produced each year. That's about 10 pieces for every person on this planet!

Fast fashion is cheap, so people are buying 5x more clothes than they did in 1980.

On average, clothes are only worn 7 times before they're thrown away.

50% of fast fashion is thrown away in less than a year.

2.1 billion tonnes
(about 2.1 trillion kg) of clothes are thrown away every year. Most of it ends up in landfills.

NATIONAL GEOGRAPHIC EXPLORER

3 8.1 Listen to Mary Gagen talking about the infographic. Answer the questions.

1 How does Mary feel about fast fashion?
2 What did she do a few years ago?
3 What was her reaction to the fact that we currently produce ten new pieces of clothing a year for every person on this planet?
4 What happens when fast fashion goes to landfills?
5 What are the two things Mary says we can do?

4 Read the Grammar box. In pairs, find the relative pronouns in the example sentences and say what they refer to.

GRAMMAR Defining and non-defining relative clauses

Use relative clauses to give more information about a person, thing or place. Use the relative pronoun who for people, which for things and where for places. Use whose to mean of who / of which.

- Use defining relative clauses to give information that is essential for understanding the person, thing or place you're talking about.

The plastic in the materials which make these cheap clothes ends up in our seas and oceans.

In defining relative clauses, you can replace which or who with that.

We throw away clothes which/that have only been worn about seven times.

There are people out there who/that are buying hundreds of pieces of clothing every year!

- Use non-defining relative clauses to give extra information that is not necessary for understanding the person, thing or place you're talking about.

All of these clothes usually end up in landfills, which are areas of land where rubbish is buried.

In non-defining relative clauses, you can't replace which/who with that.

People are buying more clothes because of fast fashion, which is cheap and fashionable.

Go to page 79 for the Grammar reference.

5 Work in pairs. Underline the relative clauses in sentences 1–5. Which of them are defining (D) and which are non-defining (N)?

1 Fast fashion, which started in the early 2000s, has changed the way we buy clothes.
2 Fast fashion brings styles which are seen in this season's fashion shows to the high-street stores at cheap prices.
3 Fast-fashion companies pay celebrities, whose fashion styles are often copied by their millions of followers, to wear their clothes.
4 There's a growing number of shoppers who are happy to buy second-hand clothes.
5 Many people are using websites like eBay and Vinted, where users can buy and sell second-hand goods, to make money from selling their old clothes.

6 Work in pairs. Look at the sentences in Exercise 5 again. Circle the relative pronouns and say what they refer to.

7 Complete the sentences with which, who, where, whose or that. Some sentences might have two possible answers.

1 Many of us throw away clothes _____ we don't want instead of recycling them.
2 The tidying-up expert Marie Kondo, _____ popular show encourages people to own less, tells people they should clear out their wardrobes.
3 The clothes _____ the world throws away each year are worth about $460 billion.
4 There is an environmental cost to producing even one t-shirt, _____ takes about 2,700 litres of water to make.
5 A person _____ drinks 8 cups of water a day would take 2.5 years to drink 2,700 litres of water.
6 In Germany, _____ three quarters of all used clothing is collected for reuse or recycling, there are many processes in place to reduce the environmental effects of clothing waste.

8 Combine the sentences using relative clauses.

1 Many people now think that vintage clothes are fashionable. Vintage clothes are clothes from the past of a different style.
2 I'm trying to convince my cousin to buy more second-hand clothes. My cousin's idea of fun is shopping for new clothes.
3 We should resell clothes. We haven't worn these clothes in a year.
4 Clothes shops should not throw away clothes. These clothes have been returned to them by customers.

PRONUNCIATION

9 8.2 Look at the Clear voice box and listen to the examples. Notice how the th sounds aren't pronounced.

CLEAR VOICE

Understanding elision in words with th

When people speak quickly, they sometimes don't pronounce the th in some words. This can make it hard to understand what the speaker is saying.

I have some clothes that I don't want.

Plastic from materials that are used in cheap clothes goes into our oceans.

10 8.3 Listen and complete the sentences.

1 I believe people should sell _____ clothes _____ they don't use.
2 I can't understand _____ people who throw away clothes after wearing _____ once or twice.
3 It's better to give away clothes _____ to throw _____ away.

SPEAKING

11 Work in small groups. Answer the questions.

1 How many of your clothes do you think never really get worn? Why?
2 What do you usually do with clothes that you don't want? Why?
3 Have you ever bought second-hand clothes? If so, what did you buy?
4 Is there anything else you buy second-hand or that you regularly give away? What? Who to?

8C Food that you can't live without

LESSON GOALS
- Learn adjectives to describe food
- Activate vocabulary before listening to a conversation about food
- Practise the sounds /ɪ/ and /iː/
- Learn different ways of using comparatives

SPEAKING

1 Work in pairs. Discuss the questions.
1 What food can't you live without? How would you describe it?
2 What is a typical dish from your country/region? How would you describe it?

LISTENING

2 Look at the Listening skill box. In pairs, answer questions 1–4.

LISTENING SKILL
Activating vocabulary

Before listening, it can be helpful to think about the topic and predict the kinds of words you're likely to hear. This activates the vocabulary that is stored in your brain and you are more prepared when you hear these types of words used.

You're going to listen to three people describing food that they can't live without. Can you think of …
1 three verbs to describe how we cook food?
2 four adjectives to describe different tastes?
3 five types of meat?
4 six vegetables?

3 8.4 Listen to Chati, Jamie and Desirée talking about the food they can't live without. Who can't live without these foods – Chati (C), Jamie (J) or Desirée (D)?
1 sticky rice 2 arepas 3 Cullen skink

4 8.4 Listen again. Complete the sentences.
1 Arepa is like a thick pancake made from corn _____.
2 You can put different _____ in an arepa – beans, meat or avocado.
3 Cullen skink is a fish soup cooked in butter, milk and _____.
4 Cranachan is a Scottish _____ made with strawberries, raspberries and oats.
5 Larb is like a minced meat _____.
6 Larb tastes hot, _____, sweet and sour at the same time.
7 Larb is often eaten in Laos and _____.

VOCABULARY

5 8.5 Work in pairs. Answer the questions. Then listen to check.
1 You sometimes add -y to form an adjective, e.g. something that sticks = sticky. How can you describe the taste of food that …
a has a lot of cheese?
b has a lot of cream?
c has a lot of butter?
d has a lot of salt?
2 What are the adjective forms of these nouns?
a milk
b oil
c water
d chocolate e fruit
f meat
g spice (like hot chillies)

Go to page 74 for the Vocabulary reference.

Arepa

Larb

6 Work in pairs. Can you think of a food item for each of the adjectives in Exercise 5?

7 Complete these sentences with the adjectives from Exercise 5.

1 She's put extra strawberries in the cake, so it's nice and _____.
2 He's vegetarian, so don't prepare anything _____ for him.
3 Eating _____ food makes me very thirsty.
4 You might want to thicken the sauce because it's really _____.
5 The curry is very _____. He's put too many chillies in.
6 I like my coffee and tea black. I'm not a fan of _____ drinks.
7 I don't like deep frying vegetables because they get very _____.
8 Don't put too much parmesan cheese on my pasta. I don't like it when it's too _____.

PRONUNCIATION

8 8.6 Look at the Clear voice box. Listen and repeat.

CLEAR VOICE
Saying /ɪ/ and /iː/

/iː/ is a longer sound than /ɪ/.
When you say /ɪ/, your mouth is relaxed.
/ɪ/ fish, chicken, sticky
When you say /iː/, your mouth spreads wider, like you're smiling.
/iː/ meat, beef, cream

9 8.7 Look at these words. Tick (✓) the sound each word contains. Listen to check and repeat.

	/ɪ/	/iː/
1 eat	☐	☐
2 drink	☐	☐
3 milk	☐	☐
4 cheesy	☐	☐
5 sweet	☐	☐
6 this	☐	☐
7 women	☐	☐
8 piece	☐	☐

GRAMMAR

10 Read the Grammar box. Then choose the correct answers for sentences 1–4.

GRAMMAR Comparatives

With adverbs ending with -ly e.g. slowly, quietly, you form comparatives with more/less + adverb.
Pierre can get it more easily in France.
You can use much / a lot / a little / slightly + comparative adjective to show how big the difference is.
It makes it slightly less bitter.
Making arepas with arepa flour is much better.
You use more or less the same to say that something is almost the same.
I think the larb in north-east Thailand is more or less the same as the larb in Laos.
You use not as + adjective + as to show that two things are not equal.
I guess the cheese in France is not as expensive as the cheese in Thailand.

Go to page 79 for the Grammar reference.

1 I don't mind eating either chicken or duck. They are not as / more or less / a lot the same to me.
2 There's less chilli in this, so it shouldn't be as / more / less spicy as the other dish.
3 People say I always eat like I'm in a rush. I'm trying to eat much / more / a lot slowly.
4 I have chocolatey treats quite / not as / a lot more frequently than I should.

11 Work in pairs. Write sentences using not as … as.

1 Restaurants are bigger than cafés.
Cafés aren't as big as restaurants.
2 Chips are oilier than boiled potatoes.
Boiled potatoes …
3 My mother's cooking is better than mine.
My cooking …
4 Fruit juices are healthier than soft drinks.
5 Sauces that are made with butter are thicker than sauces that are made with oil.

SPEAKING

12 Work in small groups. Tell your group about one dish you love and one you really dislike. Describe how they look and taste and why you like/dislike them.

8D Giving and receiving feedback

LESSON GOALS
- Learn about different types of 'feedback sandwiches'
- Consider tips on giving and receiving feedback
- Practise offering developmental feedback

SPEAKING

1 Work in pairs. Discuss the questions.
1 Think of a situation where someone said they wanted to give you feedback on something you did. How did they do it? How did you feel?
2 Do you think feedback is important? Why?

2 Work in pairs. Look at what Rudi and Kabir are saying and answer the questions (1–2).

'I met Kabir for lunch and he started talking to me about the party I had at my house last weekend. He said he had a really good time at the party and loved the music and the atmosphere. He also said it was interesting to see so many meat dishes at the table. We had Spanish chicken paella, Turkish lamb köfte, German beef rouladen and Chinese Peking duck, so I just thought he was really impressed by the variety of food we had. Later that week, I spoke to Kabir's best friend Ezan. Ezan told me that Kabir's recently become vegetarian and was really hungry during my party. I was quite shocked by this information. I had no idea and if Ezan hadn't told me, I'd still have the impression that Kabir loved the party food! I wish Kabir had told me. We're all friends and I'd appreciate some openness.'

Rudi

'I feel that I was very open and clear in the feedback I gave Rudi about his party food. I'm pleased that I dealt with the situation in a way that didn't offend Rudi.'

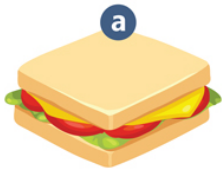
Kabir

1 Why do you think that Rudi felt Kabir wasn't being honest and yet Kabir felt he was?
2 What would you do if you were Rudi?

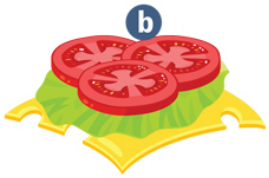
MY VOICE

3 ▶ 8.2 Watch the video about giving feedback. Answer the questions.
1 What are the three layers of the feedback sandwich? What is the purpose of the bread?
2 What parts of the feedback sandwich did Kabir prefer to use?
3 What parts of the feedback sandwich did Rudi prefer to use?
4 What should you do when communicating with people from other cultures?

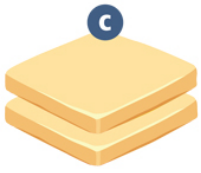
4 Work in pairs. Match the situations (1–4) with the type of feedback sandwich (a–d).
1 'I just wanted you to know that you left the tap running the other day. I know you didn't mean to, but I thought I should mention it. It might be worth checking before you leave the room next time because it's a waste of water.'
2 'Have you brought two suitcases with you on holiday? It's good to have all your essentials with you. You're very prepared.'
3 'Thanks for organizing that virtual call. It was nice to see everyone. How do you feel it went? I enjoyed the games you suggested, but do you think maybe some of the people weren't so keen on playing games? I think the games really gave us something to focus on, but I wonder if some people just wanted to chat and catch up instead?'
4 'That's a beautiful dress. The blue really suits you. I'm not sure if those shoes go well with that dress though. But that necklace is really lovely. You look amazing.'



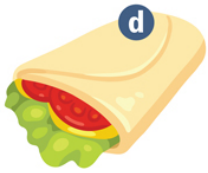
The feedback sandwich



All filling, no bread



All bread, no filling



Filling and bread combined

5 Work in pairs. Look at the Communication skill box. Discuss which of these you might find the most difficult to do and why.

COMMUNICATION SKILL
Giving and receiving feedback

When receiving feedback

- If someone gives you all-bread-no-filling feedback, think about what the developmental feedback might be.
- If someone gives you all-filling-no-bread feedback, focus on how the feedback can help you develop and improve.

When giving feedback

- Use the bread part of the feedback sandwich to soften the developmental feedback. Make the positive feedback specific and genuine.
- Be clear and specific about how your feedback can help them develop.
- Show you have positive intentions.

SPEAKING

6 OWN IT! Read situations A–C. In pairs, answer the questions.

1 How was feedback given?
2 What advice could you give the feedback givers and receivers in each scenario?

A Yuen invited Tomaž to his house for a home-cooked meal. When Yuen asked Tomaž what he thought of the food, Tomaž said Yuen's cooking is always very salty. Yuen felt unappreciated.

B When Jo introduced Beng to her friends, he spoke all the time and no one else had the chance to speak. Later, Jo told Beng she wanted to talk about his conversation style. She then talked about how lively and chatty Beng was and how others are not as confident as he is. Beng went away feeling pleased that Jo's friends admired him so much.

C When Pensri asked her friend Alba what she thought of her painting, Alba said that it was lovely and that Pensri was very talented. Alba then said that the colours were very dark and suggested that Pensri should try brighter colours. Pensri felt that Alba's positive feedback about her talent wasn't genuine and that Alba didn't really like her painting.

7 Look at the Useful language box. In pairs, say how you normally signal positive intention when giving someone feedback in your first language.

Useful language Giving feedback

Giving positive feedback (the bread)
I really like the way you (drew those mountains).
I must say you're so good at (cooking so many different dishes).
I've heard so many people saying such good things about (your artwork).

Showing positive intention
I have some thoughts that might be useful.
I've got some ideas that might help if you'd like to hear them.
I'm saying this because I'd like to support you.

Giving clear developmental feedback (the filling)
It seems to me that (the others didn't really get a chance to speak).
Maybe you could (include some vegetarian dishes)?
Have you thought about (using some bright colours)?

8 Work in pairs. Roleplay the three situations in Exercise 6, taking turns to be the person giving clear feedback. Use the Communication skill tips and the Useful language to give feedback in a way that doesn't damage the relationship.

9 Work in small groups. Discuss the questions.

1 Think about a time when you had to give someone feedback. What happened? How did you tell them about it?
2 What factors do you think might affect the feedback style you choose? Can you give some examples?
3 How do you normally prefer to receive feedback? How does the way feedback is given affect your response to it?
4 How do you think you can improve the way you receive feedback?

8E Smiling is essential

LESSON GOAL
- Choose an appropriate topic for a blog post
- Learn useful language for saying what's important
- Write a blog post about essential skills

SPEAKING

1 Work in pairs. Look at the list of jobs and activities (1–6) and the list of skills, abilities and qualities (a–g). Which items from each list do you think go together? Why?

1 planning a party
2 playing online games
3 gardening
4 playing the violin
5 teaching
6 photographing people around the world for National Geographic a ability to think and act quickly b an understanding of weather and seasons c good communication skills

d good listening skills
e good organizational skills f patience
g problem-solving ability

A: For playing online games, you need the ability to think and act quickly.
B: You may need patience too. Some games take a lot of practice!

1 What word does Rubén define in the introduction? Why do you think he gives the definition?
2 What is the danger if Rubén doesn't know a bit about his subjects' culture?
3 What are the benefits of speaking a few words of someone else's language?
4 What type of body language does Rubén use to make his subjects feel comfortable?

WRITING TASK

4 Look at the Writing skill box. Then answer the questions (1–3) to help you decide what to write about.

WRITING SKILL
Choosing a topic for a blog post

When you're writing a blog post about a personal interest, choose a topic that might also be interesting to others and that you can explain well. Ask:

1 What are my interests and activities?
2 Which of these might be interesting to others?
3 What parts of it can I explain in a way that will be clear to others?

5 Now think of some skills, abilities and qualities that are essential for your chosen activity or interest. Make a list.

Climbing: good organizational skills, control fear, physical fitness, …

6 Look at the Useful language box. Write one of each type of sentence about your topic.

Useful language Saying what's important

It's essential to (speak some basic words of their language).
You have to be / It's important to be (friendly).
You have to / It's important to (smile).
(Photographers) need to be able to (understand people).
Don't forget to / Remember to (use body language).
(Communication) is an essential skill for (a photographer).

You have to be fit.
Climbers need to be able to control fear.
Organization is an essential skill for climbing.

7 WRITE Write a blog post about your topic. Use the blog post on page 45 as a model and the sentences you wrote in Exercise 6.

Rubén photographs a subject in Chin State, Myanmar.

Three essential skills for photographing someone whose language you don't speak

By Rubén Salgado Escudero

When I travel and take photographs for National Geographic, I often don't share a language with my subjects (the people I take photos of). Here are three essential skills for working successfully in that situation.

1 _____

It's essential to study the culture of the person you will photograph. It's important to learn about their way of life and style of communication and what is acceptable or not OK when working with people in that place. You don't want to make someone feel upset or angry, so you have to understand a bit about where that person comes from.

2 _____

Speaking some basic words in your subject's language is an essential skill for a photographer. This helps you break the ice when you first meet them. Being able to say words such as yes, no, thank you, or even you are doing great really help you when you're photographing people. Also, they usually find it charming that you made the effort, and this makes them feel more comfortable. And if they're comfortable, you'll get better pictures.

3 _____

A photographer needs to know the one language that most of us can understand and connect with. Smiling from the beginning is the key to making friends with your subject and making them feel at ease before and during a photo session. Also, don't be afraid to use your hands and feet to explain things like where to stand or how to position your body. And remember to keep smiling through a session. It changes the energy and feeling between you and your subject and creates a more enjoyable experience for everyone.

8 CHECK Use the checklist. The blog post …

- ☐ is about one of your activities or interests.
- ☐ lists 3–5 essential skills/abilities.
- ☐ includes phrases from the Useful language box.
- ☐ explains the importance of each skill/ability.
- ☐ would be clear to someone who doesn't know anything about this activity.

9 REVIEW Work in pairs. Read your partner's blog post. Answer the questions.

9A Days off work

LESSON GOALS
- Understand an article about time off from work
- Understand contrast
- Interpret a bar chart

READING

1 Work in pairs. Discuss the questions.

1 Some companies have no limit on the number of paid days off that their employees can take. Why do you think some companies allow unlimited paid holiday?
2 What are the benefits for employees?
3 Can you think of any problems this might cause?

2 Read the article on page 49. Complete the sentences using these words to give the main idea of each paragraph.

allowed bad employees good less more rules

1 In many countries, employees are legally _____ to take paid time off from work.
2 Companies with unlimited holiday expect employees to make _____ decisions.
3 CharlieHR found that unlimited holiday made people take _____ time off.
4 Rules for time off need to consider all _____ equally.
5 Without _____, people may feel anxious asking for time off.
6 Limiting paid holiday may make workers take _____ time off.
7 Unlimited paid holiday may be _____ for workers.

3 Look at the Reading skill box. Find and circle the contrast expressions in the article.

READING SKILL
Understanding contrast (2): reading for contrast

Writers use certain words and phrases to introduce a contrasting idea in a text. For example: However, … , Even though … , Despite the fact that … and Although …

It's important to recognize these phrases in order to fully understand how the ideas they refer to are connected.

4 Work in pairs. Match 1–4 with a–d to give contrasting ideas from the article. Which contrast expressions are used?

1 Most companies limit paid holidays.
2 Unlimited paid holiday sometimes works well.
3 CharlieHR wanted to make employees happy.
4 Unlimited paid holiday may sound like a dream.

a Sometimes it has caused problems.
b In reality, it can cause people to work too much.
c Some companies don't.
d Things didn't turn out that way.

5 Look at the Critical thinking skill box and the bar chart on page 49. Work in pairs. Answer the questions in the box.

CRITICAL THINKING SKILL
Interpreting bar charts

A bar chart is a simple way to compare information in different categories. In a vertical bar chart, the left side gives the values and the bottom shows the categories. The bars show the value for each category. Interpret the chart correctly to understand the information. Ask:
- What categories of information does it show?
- What are the values that are measured?
- Why is a bar chart useful for showing this information?

6 Look at the bar chart again. Complete the sentences.

1 More than half of the companies offer _____ days off per year.
2 Slightly fewer than 20% of companies offer _____ days off per year.
3 Nearly 15% of companies offer more than _____ days off or have no limit.

SPEAKING

7 Work in small groups. Discuss the questions.

1 What do you think is the best way to give employees paid time off? Why?
2 Would you prefer to take time off whenever you want or for your company to close for a month?

Unlimited paid holiday?

It sounds like the best job benefit possible – but do you really want it?

An Emirati family spend time off together, Abu Dhabi, the UAE.

1 In much of the world, the law requires employers to give workers a minimum number of paid days off work each year, often between 20 and 40, including both personal and public holidays. In many places, the law says employees have to take time off. Most companies say exactly how many paid days off are available and encourage staff to use them.

2 However, some companies allow employees to take as many days off as they like, including a lot of well-known companies such as Facebook, Dropbox and LinkedIn. Craig Malloy, CEO of an IT company called Bloomfire, says that when you treat people like adults, they act like adults. His employees love it and don't take too much – or too little – paid holiday. The idea is that happy employees work hard for the company.

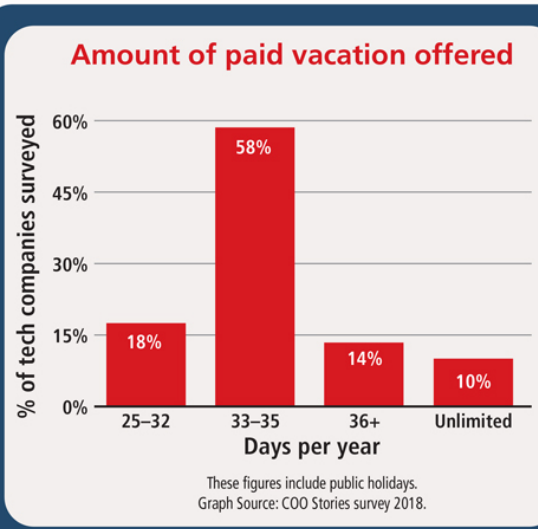
3 Even though unlimited holiday has been a big success for some companies, others have found that it causes problems. When software company CharlieHR was set up in 2015, the owners decided to offer unlimited paid holiday because they assumed their team would deliver great work and they trusted them to manage their lives in a responsible way. Despite the fact that CharlieHR's intention was to make their employees feel happy and well rested, it didn't turn out that way. The problem wasn't that people took too much time off, but that they took too little. According to CEO Ben Gately, quite a few people took only 21–22 days off per year. 'Personally,' Gately says, 'I don't think that's enough to keep you fresh and at the top of your game.'

4 Gately also points out that the people who aren't on holiday have to do the work of those who are away. So, if you feel you need 30 days off, you give your colleagues more work than the person who takes 20 days off – and this isn't completely fair.

5 The final problem, according to Gately, is that not knowing the limits can make people worry. An employee survey at CharlieHR showed that workers felt nervous asking for time off because they didn't know if they were asking for too much.

6 After three years of offering unlimited paid holiday, CharlieHR decided to give employees 25 days of holiday they can choose to take at any time – on top of national holidays. Gately says that giving employees a certain number of paid days off per year makes them want to take those days. 'When something belongs to you,' he says, 'you immediately value it more highly.' In addition, CharlieHR set a rule that everyone has to take at least 22 days off per year and they strongly encourage everyone to take at least five days off every three months.

7 Although unlimited paid holiday from work may sound like a dream, in reality it seems that it can increase stress at work and cause people to work harder with fewer breaks.



These figures include public holidays.

1 Work in pairs. Complete the sentences with your own ideas and explain your answers.

1 If I had some time off next week, I would …
2 If I could go to any country in the world, I would go to …
3 If travel was no longer allowed, I would spend my holidays …
4 I would feel like I'm on holiday if I were …
5 If I were an explorer, I would …

NATIONAL GEOGRAPHIC EXPLORER

2 Read about Gabby Salazar's holiday regrets below. Then answer questions 1–4.

1 What was Gabby not able to do on Réunion? Why?
2 What did Gabby not take enough of to Costa Rica? What happened as a result?
3 What lesson did Gabby learn when she was in Russia?
4 What would you say to Gabby if she told you about these regrets?

3 Choose the correct words to complete the sentences.

1 When Gabby is talking about Costa Rica, she is talking about the past / present / future.
2 In reality, Gabby did / didn't take enough cash to Costa Rica.
3 Gabby wishes that she had taken / hadn't taken more cash.

I have quite a few holiday regrets. Once, I was on the island of Réunion and I really wanted to see the famous volcano on the island. Unfortunately, it was too cloudy for the helicopter to fly there, so my friend and I drove for hours to try and see the volcano. But the mist was so thick we had to turn around and go home. If I had gone there a different week, I might have seen it.

Another time, I was in Costa Rica and I couldn't use my credit cards. If I had known the hotel and the local places didn't accept credit cards, I would have taken more cash. But I didn't, and I ran out of money and had to cut my trip short.

Another regret I have is going to Russia without speaking a word of Russian when I was 14. If I had spent time learning some Russian before I went, I'd have been able to connect more with the local people. That's something I try and do now. I think it's important to make an effort to learn at least a few key phrases because it shows people you're interested in their language and culture.

Gabby on her trip to Réunion.

4 Read the Grammar box. In pairs, say what the differences are between sentences 1–3.

GRAMMAR Third conditional

Use the third conditional (if + past perfect, would have + past participle) to express an imaginary past result of an imaginary past action.

If I had known the hotel and the local places didn't accept credit cards, I would have taken more cash.*

Use could or might instead of would to reduce the certainty of the result.

If I had gone there a different week, I might have seen it.

Go to page 80 for the Grammar reference.

1 If I go on a beach holiday, I'll read my book all day.
2 If I went on a beach holiday, I'd read my book all day.
3 If I had been on a beach holiday, I would have read my book all day.

5 Complete Lim's sentences. Use the third conditional.

1 'If I _____ (be) on time for my flight, I _____ (go) on holiday with my friends.'
2 'If I _____ (not take) the train, I _____ (not stop) in that beautiful small Italian town called Otranto.'
3 'If Rosa _____ (check) her phone, she _____ (see) that her friends had changed their meeting place.'
4 'If it _____ (not be) raining, we _____ (not share) an umbrella.'
5 'If I _____ (speak) Italian, I _____ (ask) for her name.'
6 'If we _____ (not be) on holiday in Madrid at the same time, we _____ (not meet) again.'

6 Work in pairs. Use the sentences in Exercise 5 (in any order) to write a story about how Lim met his wife Rosa.

7 In pairs, look at these holiday regrets (1–5). Change the sentences into the third conditional.

1 When I was a teenager, my parents didn't let me travel, so I didn't join my friends on their trips.
If my parents had let me travel, I would have joined my friends on their trips.
2 I wasn't adventurous, so I went to the same places every year.
3 I was afraid of trying new things, so I didn't try the local food.
4 I didn't talk to any of the local people, so I didn't get to know the local culture.
5 I didn't research the local culture in advance, so I made many mistakes.

8 Think about the last holiday you had. In pairs, complete these sentences and make them true for you.

1 If I'd had more money, I …
2 If I'd had more time, I …
3 If I'd gone with someone different, I …
4 If I'd been ten years younger, I …
5 If I'd done more research, I …

PRONUNCIATION AND SPEAKING

9 9.1 Look at the Clear voice box. Listen and repeat.

CLEAR VOICE
Saying aspirated /p/, /t/ and /k/

Put your hand in front of your mouth and say holiday. Notice how you push out a puff of air when you say /h/ in holiday. This is called aspiration.

When the consonants /p/, /t/ and /k/ are at the beginning of a word and are followed by a vowel, you say them with the same puff of air: /pʰ/, /tʰ/ and /kʰ/.

/pʰ/ past, pool*
/tʰ/ time, talk*
/kʰ/ keep, camp*

But when these consonants are grouped with other consonants or when they are at the end of a word, you don't say them with the same puff of air.

/p/ *place, trip
/t/ *try, spot
/k/ *crazy, back

10 9.2 Work in pairs. Decide if the consonants /p/, /t/ and /k/ are aspirated (A) or non-aspirated (N). Then listen to check and repeat.

1 plane
2 park
3 ticket
4 train
5 car
6 work

LESSON GOALS
- Listen for specific information in a conversation about holiday advice
- Practise giving advice
- Learn holiday vocabulary
- Practise saying consonant groups

SPEAKING

1 Work in pairs. Think of somewhere that you've been on holiday. Now, imagine your partner wants to go to the same place on their holiday. Give them advice using these questions.

1 What do you think they should take with them?
2 What do you think they should do in advance?
3 What do you think they should be careful not to do?

LISTENING

2 Work in pairs. Look at the Listening skill box. Which of the phrases (a–f) might you expect to hear when listening for holiday advice?

LISTENING SKILL
Listening for specific information

When you listen, you often listen with a purpose. Perhaps you might be looking for the answers to certain questions, or getting specific information about something.

It can help to:
- have a clear idea of what you're listening for.
- predict the type of words/phrases that might signal where that specific information can be found.
- listen out for those words/phrases or variations of them.

a I'd advise you to …
b If I were you, …
c I must remember to …
d I'm fed up with …
e I wouldn't do …
f Can I suggest that …?

3 9.3 Listen to Bogdan and Alessia's conversation. Discuss these questions with a partner.

1 Why is Alessia giving Bogdan advice?
2 What advice does she give about …
   a deciding on a destination?
   b accommodation?
   c sleeping?
   d knowing what places to visit?
3 Which pieces of Alessia's advice do you think Bogdan will take? Why?

GRAMMAR

4 Read the Grammar box. How do you give advice and recommendations in your first language?

GRAMMAR Giving advice

Use should / ought to + infinitive to give advice.
You ought to try it!
You should just take a tent.
Use (If I were you,) I would/wouldn't + infinitive to say what you think someone should/shouldn't do.
(If I were you,) I'd pack my bags, jump into my car and go on a road trip.
Use suggest/recommend + -ing to give suggestions and recommendations.
I suggest getting an air mattress.
You can also use suggest/recommend (that).
I'd definitely recommend (that) you bring a sleeping bag.

Go to page 81 for the Grammar reference.

5 Rewrite these sentences using the words in brackets. Then in pairs, say if you agree with this holiday advice.

1 It's a good idea to check if you can use your phone in that country. (should)
2 Take your phone charger with you! (ought to)
3 Don't forget to check the visa requirements. (would)
4 I think it's a good idea to get travel insurance. (suggest)
5 I don't think it's a good idea to post your holiday dates on social media. (wouldn't)
6 My advice is to book a package holiday. It's much more convenient. (recommend).

6 Rewrite these sentences using suggest/recommend + -ing.

1 I suggest that you weigh your suitcase before you go to the airport.
2 I recommend that you call your bank before you use your bank cards abroad.
3 He recommended that I travel by train.
4 She suggested that I don't bring too many clothes.

VOCABULARY

7 9.4 Complete the text with these words. Then listen to check.

abroad accommodation check deposits destination insurance luggage making reservations unpacking up

I enjoy [1] _____ holiday plans. I like booking my [2] _____ six months in advance. I [3] _____ out the travel advice about my holiday [4] _____ before my trip. And I always make [5] _____ at the best restaurants. But the last time I went [6] _____, all my plans went wrong. I was [7] _____ my suitcase when I realized I'd forgotten to bring my phone charger. This meant I couldn't look [8] _____ any maps on my phone and I couldn't find the restaurant addresses. So I ended up losing the [9] _____ I'd paid. And when the airline lost my [10] _____ on the flight back, I couldn't give them my travel [11] _____ details because all the information was on my phone! I wish we weren't so dependent on our phones!

Go to page 74 for the Vocabulary reference.

8 Work in pairs. Discuss the questions.

1 Do many people you know go abroad for their holidays? Where do they often go to?
2 What are some popular holiday destinations in your country?
3 How many different types of holiday accommodation can you name?
4 When you go away, do you normally unpack your suitcase as soon as you get there? Why? / Why not?
5 Do you usually make reservations when you go to a restaurant? Why? / Why not?
6 Have you ever lost anything while on holiday? What happened?

PRONUNCIATION

9 9.5 Look at the Clear voice box and listen to the examples. How do you normally say words like 'plans' and 'advice'?

CLEAR VOICE
Saying consonant groups (2): inserting a short vowel

Some students might find words with two or three consonants together difficult to pronounce.

Instead of not pronouncing a consonant, it's easier for people to understand you if you try inserting a short vowel between the consonants.

For example, when saying 'plans', instead of saying /pænz/ or /lænz/, try saying /pᵊlænz/.

*pl*ans = /plænz/, /pᵊlænz/

When saying 'advice', instead of saying /əvaɪs/, try saying /ədᵘvaɪs/.

a*dv*ice = /ədvaɪs/, /ədᵘvaɪs/

10 Work in pairs. How would you say these words? Where are the consonant groups?

1 travel
2 special
3 block
4 smartphone

9D Dealing with unexpected behaviours

LESSON GOALS
- Reflect on how we tend to deal with unexpected behaviours
- Practise considering different interpretations of unexpected behaviours
- Discuss different interpretations of unexpected behaviours

SPEAKING

1 Work in pairs. Think of a time when you were introduced to a new group of people, e.g. colleagues at a new workplace, a new group of friends, a friend's family, and they did things differently from you. Discuss the questions.

1 What did they do that surprised you?
2 How did you feel about what they did?
3 How did you react?

2 9.6 Peter is on holiday and starts chatting to Lee in a café. Listen to the conversation between Peter and Lee. In pairs, answer the questions.

1 What impression would Lee make on you?
2 What might Peter think of Lee?

3 9.7 Peter later told his friend about his meeting with Lee. Listen to what Peter says. In pairs, answer the questions.

1 How did Lee make Peter feel uncomfortable?
2 How might Lee's conversation style be different from what Peter expected?

MY VOICE

4 ▶ 9.2 Watch the video about dealing with unexpected behaviours. Answer the questions.

1 When we meet someone who does things differently from us, how do we often interpret their behaviour?
2 The video suggests going through the three steps of Describe, Analyse, Evaluate. Which steps did Peter take instead?
3 When describing what happened, what should we be careful not to do?
4 The video suggests three interpretations of Lee's behaviour. Can you think of other possible interpretations?
5 By practising using these three steps, what are we training ourselves to do?

5 Look at the Communication skill box. Work in pairs. Answer questions 1–2.

COMMUNICATION SKILL
Dealing with unexpected behaviours

When you encounter a behaviour that is different to what you expect, use the D-A-E steps to better understand what you're experiencing.

Describe – Say what's happening without any judgement.

Analyse – Reflect on why this is happening. Try to give at least three different possible reasons or interpretations for the behaviour.

Evaluate – Consider how each interpretation in the Analyse step makes you feel.

Why do you think it is important …

1 not to jump from Describe to Evaluate?
2 to give at least three different possible interpretations for the behaviour?

6 Look at the Useful language box. Notice the use of might and would. Why do you think these are good verbs to use when dealing with different behaviours?

Useful language Considering unexpected behaviours

Describe
What happened was (he asked too many personal questions).

Analyse
Maybe (he) did that because (he was trying to show interest).
It might be due to (his style of questioning).
Perhaps he was (nervous).

Evaluate
That would make me feel (uncomfortable).
I would find that behaviour (aggressive).
I would (be happy to give him more information).

A tourist shops at a craft fair in Olinda, Brazil.

7 Work in pairs. Put steps 1–3 about a holiday situation in the correct order: Describe (D), Analyse (A) and Evaluate (E).

1

What happened was I walked into a shop and the shop assistants didn't smile at me or say hello. I asked one of them, 'Do you have any postcards?' and they simply said 'No' and didn't give me any other information. In my country, I'm used to shop assistants smiling and offering a lot more help.

a It's good to know they weren't being unfriendly. It makes me realize how much I depend on smiles to know if someone is friendly and being polite. I can see why some cultures might not assume the same thing.
b If that was the case, then I would feel really bad about walking in at this moment. I'd actually be glad they weren't trying to smile and make small talk with me.
c I would understand that because sometimes I find it scary when I suddenly have to speak English to people I don't know.

a Perhaps people don't show friendliness through smiles and constant interaction here.
b Maybe they did that because one of them just told the other some very bad news.
c I think maybe they were nervous about their English.

SPEAKING

8 OWN IT! Work in pairs. Use the D-A-E steps shown in Exercise 5 and the Useful language to discuss the different behaviours in each of these holiday situations.

1 You paid in advance to see a tourist attraction, but when you arrive, you realize half the attraction is closed. You complain to the staff and you were expecting them to give you an explanation and suggest some solutions. Instead, they simply smile and say, 'We're sorry.'
2 While waiting for the bus, you get into a conversation with someone. You tell them you work in information technology. They ask you, 'How much money do you make every month?' You don't think asking about someone's salary is polite.
3 You meet some locals at a café and you get into a discussion with them about the recent news. One of them makes a comment which you openly disagree with. The locals all smile at you and they say, 'That's very interesting' and 'You're very knowledgeable'. You think they admire your confidence.

9 Work in small groups. Discuss the questions.

1 After considering at least three different interpretations, you might want to find out which interpretation is the most accurate one. How can you do this?
2 Have you ever felt confused or upset by someone's behaviour because it wasn't what you were expecting? How did you deal with it? How might you apply these three steps to the experience?

- Practise useful language for complaining
- Write an email of complaint

New Message

To: A.Weber@Hotel789.com

From: Caleb.G@Gerger.com

Subject: Complaint about my stay in Bielefeld in March

Dear Ms Weber

I'm writing about my recent stay at your hotel. I've stayed at other hotels in your chain many times before and have always been satisfied with my experience.

However, when I stayed in Bielefeld from the 15–17th March this year, the experience was very different. These are some of the issues I had:

- I had booked a double room but was given a room with two single beds.
- The room hadn't been cleaned well.
- When I tried to take a shower, there was no hot water.
- The hotel WiFi was not working and I wasn't able to get online with my phone or my laptop.

I mentioned all of this to the receptionist at that time and asked for a change of room, but unfortunately nothing was done about it.

My stay was very unpleasant and, as a result, I wasn't able to enjoy my holiday.

I would like to request a fifty per cent refund for my stay, to be transferred back to me within fourteen days, please.

Best regards

Caleb G.

SPEAKING

1 Work in pairs. Discuss the questions.

1 Have you ever been dissatisfied with a product or service? What happened?
2 Do you ever complain about the products or services you receive? What are the pros and cons of complaining by phone, by email or in person?

READING FOR WRITING

2 Read the email on the left. In pairs, answer the questions.

1 What is Caleb writing to Ms Weber about?
2 Why was Caleb dissatisfied with his stay on the 15–17th March?
3 What did he try to do about it at the time?
4 What does he hope to achieve by writing this email?

3 Look at the Writing skill box. Find examples of 1–5 in the email on page 56.

WRITING SKILL
How to write an email of complaint

When writing an email of complaint, it can be helpful to:

1 Begin with something positive.
2 Keep the details of your complaint short and clear. Use bullet points if you have multiple points to make.
3 Make references to any previous communication, e.g. phone calls, emails.
4 Be clear about the impact of the problem.
5 Specify what you want them to do, e.g. offer a refund or apology.

4 Work in pairs. Answer the questions.

1 Why might it be a good idea to begin the email with something positive? Do you agree with this suggestion? Why? / Why not?
2 Why might using bullet points make the email more effective?
3 When making references to previous communication, what details might you include?

WRITING TASK

5 Work in pairs. Using tips 1–5 in the Writing skill box, say what you might include when writing an email of complaint in these situations.

1 You ordered some large t-shirts online for your holiday. When they arrived, you packed them straight into your suitcase. When you took them out during your holiday, you realized they were the extra-small size.
2 The airline changed the flight time without telling you. You arrived at the airport five hours early. The airline staff said they had sent you an email, but you know you never got that email.
3 You booked to go on a one-day sightseeing tour, but the tour bus took you to a jewellery store and then a carpet store and you ended up spending four hours shopping and only three hours sightseeing.

6 Look at the Useful language box. In pairs, consider the situations in Exercise 5 and replace the words in brackets with words that suit each of those situations.

Useful language Writing an email of complaint

Beginning with something positive
I've (been a customer) for a long time and have always been (happy) with (your service/products).
Your (product/company) came highly recommended by my friends.

Making references to previous communication
I tried to (call your company three times in the last week) but (was unable to get a response).
I spoke to (the manager) about this, but (I haven't heard back from him).
I mentioned this to (the receptionist) but (nothing was done about it).

Specifying what you want them to do now
I would like to request a refund.
This is (not what I ordered), so please (give me a full refund).
I hope that you can/will (deal with this quickly).

7 WRITE Write an email of complaint. Use the Useful language to help you. Choose an option (a or b).

a Choose a situation from Exercise 5. Describe and include details about what happened. Then state the impact on you and what you want them to do about it.
b Think of a time when you were unhappy with a product or service that you received. Say what happened, what the impact was on you, and what you want them to do about it.

8 CHECK Use the checklist. The email …

- ☐ uses appropriate greetings at the beginning and at the end.
- ☐ begins with something positive.
- ☐ gives details about the complaint in a short and clear way.
- ☐ makes references to previous communication.
- ☐ is clear about the impact of the problem.
- ☐ specifies what you want to be done.

9 REVIEW Work in pairs. Read your partner's email. How many of the points in the checklist does it include?

GOALS

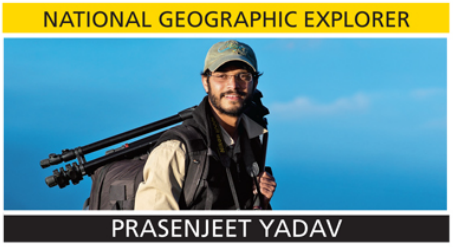
- Paraphrase ideas in an article
- Learn about language and colour
- Use the passive voice
- Make predictions
- Listen to people's problems
- Write about a memory

1 Work in pairs. Discuss the questions.

1 Look at the photo. What sense is causing the woman to react?
2 How do you think she feels?
3 Do you know any plants that have a strong smell – either good or bad?

WATCH

2 ▶ 10.1 Watch the video. Answer the questions.



1 What does Prasenjeet find interesting about the calls of the frogs?
2 What causes the spotted deer to make its call?
3 What does the call of the Malabar Whistling Thrush sound like?

3 Make connections. Discuss the questions.

1 What interesting animal sounds have you heard?
2 Do you hear or see birds or other animals in your daily life?

10A Most tastes of toast

LESSON GOALS
- Understand an article about senses
- Practise paraphrasing
- Interpret a diagram

READING

1 Work in pairs. Answer the questions.

1 What are some things around you that you can see, hear or smell and some things you might feel or taste?
2 Do you think one of your senses is especially strong or especially weak?

2 Read the article on page 61. Tick (✓) the three ideas it discusses.

a Interesting writing describes the senses in detail.
b Some people experience a mixing of the senses – 'tasting' words, 'feeling' flavours.
c Mixing of the senses is caused by brain damage. d It's normal for very small babies to have mixed senses but unusual for adults.
e Mixing of the senses has many benefits and could be useful for everyone.

3 Look at the Reading skill box. Find the original sentences in the article for paraphrases 1–3.

READING SKILL
Paraphrasing

One way to show that you've understood a text or part of a text is to explain the ideas in your own words. To paraphrase:
- Note down the main ideas in the sentence or sentences you want to paraphrase.
- Write your own version, changing the word order and using different words with similar meanings where possible.
- Check to make sure your version isn't a copy of the original.

1 For James Wannerton, the word most tastes like toast, college has the flavour of sausage and the name Karen tastes of yoghurt.
2 James and others experience words as flavours, but some people 'taste' with their hands, using their sense of touch.
3 Children may get synaesthesia from their parents, but experts don't know what causes the condition.

4 Work in pairs. Write one sentence to paraphrase lines 27–32 from the article.

5 Look at the Critical thinking skill box and the diagram on page 61. Answer the questions in the box.

CRITICAL THINKING SKILL
Interpreting a diagram

A diagram is a drawing or plan that shows what something looks like or how it works. Understanding how a diagram is connected to a text can help you understand a writer's ideas. Ask:
- What does the diagram show?
- Which part of the text is it related to?
- What ideas does it help explain?

6 Which of the following conclusions can you draw from the article?

a People with synaesthesia realize they're different when they begin talking about it.
b Most people with synaesthesia learn from their parents how to use it.
c People with synaesthesia have stronger senses than people without it.
d Senses are connected with how we learn and how we make memories.
e A cure for synaesthesia is unlikely because most people who have it wouldn't want one.

SPEAKING

7 Look at the text and the shapes below. In pairs, answer the questions.

> This experiment shows how the brain makes connections between words and shapes. It may give you some idea of what it's like to have synaesthesia.

1 One of these shapes is called Bouba and the other is called Kiki. Which do you think is Bouba and which is Kiki?
2 Compare your answers with the rest of the class.
3 What do you think the result shows?

The flavour of words

James Wannerton doesn't like the word most. Why? Because it tastes of 'cold toast with hardly any butter on it,' he says. 'I would never write it. I'd find an alternative. It distracts me, and all I can think of is toast.' College, for James, tastes of sausage. The woman's name Karen has the flavour of yoghurt. The scientific name for this mixing of senses is synaesthesia, and two to five per cent of people experience it. Most of them consider it a gift, not a problem.

While some people like James 'taste' words, others connect letters, words or sounds with colours or 'feel' flavours with their hands, as though they're touching something. Almost all of them have a story of the day they realized that their experience of the world is rare. Holly Baxter asked a friend at university, 'What colour is Monday?' The friend had no idea what she meant. Charlene Soraia, aged eleven, tried to imagine what her next school would be like. While most kids would think about classrooms, teachers and new friends, Charlene pictured 'yellow lines, with green bits'. When she told a friend, the response was 'What are you talking about?' She then understood that others didn't think in colours.

The cause of synaesthesia isn't known, though some researchers believe it may be passed from parents to children. We know that at birth, the senses in the brain are not completely separate. This means that a sound may cause activity in the 'vision' part of the brain. As a result, very young babies 'see' a colour in addition to hearing the sound. However, for most people, by the age of eight months, the connections between senses are broken and each sense is processed in a separate part of the brain. But in some people, the connections remain and two or more senses continue to work together – like the baby who both hears and 'sees' a sound.

Benefits of this connection between senses include good memory, artistic ability and strong creativity. Psychologists also believe that synaesthesia helps people see patterns of information, so they may have an advantage in areas such as language learning, where patterns like grammar forms and word combinations are extremely important. When learners associate both meaning and, for example, colour with words and phrases, they remember them better.

Because of the potential benefits of synaesthesia, experts are trying to find out if it can be learned and developed by people who don't naturally have it. Synaesthesia researcher Dr Clare Jonas trained a group of young adults to connect letters with colours and found that their ability to remember words improved. Other researchers, however, have discovered that for synaesthesia 'learners', the effect doesn't last because people forget which colours and letters go together. Research continues. Dr Jonas told the Guardian newspaper, 'It would be really nice if we could find a way to give the useful bits of synaesthesia to people who don't have it.'

2 What colour is the sky?
3 What are the names of these colours in other languages you know?

2 10.1 Look at the colours in the box and listen to the information. Then choose the best way to complete the sentence (a, b or c).

Two colours or one?

The conclusion of the research is that:

a it's impossible to know if other people see colours the way we do.
b the language you speak affects the way you see and think about the world.
c English is simpler than Greek or Russian.

3 Complete the facts with these phrases.

are seen	is given	is remembered	is used	was noticed

Colours, seeing and the brain: Five facts

- Colours [1]_____ with the brain, not the eyes.
- More than a third of the brain [2]_____ for seeing.
- A picture [3]_____ more easily than words.
- When something [4]_____ a name, we are able to see it more easily.
- The colour blue [5]_____ and named by the Ancient Egyptians.

4 Choose the correct option to complete the statements about the sentences in Exercise 3.

1 The focus of each sentence is the action or object of / person or thing doing the action.
2 The word by in the final sentence introduces who saw / did the action.
3 The verbs are formed using be and an infinitive / a past participle.

5 Read the Grammar box. Check your answers to Exercise 4.

GRAMMAR Passives

Use the passive voice (be + past participle) when the agent (the person or thing that did the action) is obvious, is not known or is not important. The passive focuses attention on the action or the object of the action.

When researchers show English speakers these two colours, they identify both as blue. (active)

When English speakers are shown these two colours, they identify both as blue. (passive)

Sometimes the agent is added after the passive verb using by + noun.

When English speakers are shown these two colours by researchers, they identify both as blue.

Go to page 81 for the Grammar reference.

6 Complete the description with passive forms.

The Water Cube in Beijing [1]_____ (build) for the 2008 Summer Olympic Games. It [2]_____ (design) by a group of architects in China and Australia. It [3]_____ (make) of steel and very strong blue plastic. It [4]_____ (use) for the swimming and diving competitions. Twenty-five world records [5]_____ (break) there in the 2008 Games. Since the Olympics, the building [6]_____ (use) as a water park and art [7]_____ (display) there.

7 Complete the passive and active sentences in each pair (a–b). Use these verbs.

choose paint produce see ~~use~~

1 a The colour blue has been used in logos by hundreds of tech companies including Samsung, Nokia and Twitter.
b Hundreds of tech companies including Samsung, Nokia and Twitter have used the colour blue in their logos.
2 a The first blue paint _____ more than 3,000 years ago by the Ancient Egyptians.
b More than 3,000 years ago, the Ancient Egyptians _____ the first blue paint.
3 a Blue is the colour that _____ the most often by both women and men as their favourite.
b Both women and men most often _____ blue as their favourite colour.
4 a When Earth _____ from space by astronauts, it looks like a bright blue ball.
b When astronauts _____ Earth from space, it looks like a bright blue ball.
5 a A picture called The Blue Room _____ by the famous artist Pablo Picasso in 1901.
b The famous artist Pablo Picasso _____ a picture called The Blue Room in 1901.

8 Work in pairs. Which passive sentences in Exercise 7 need the by phrase to make sense? Which ones can you delete the by phrase from?

PRONUNCIATION AND SPEAKING

9 Look at the Clear voice box. Work in small groups. Discuss the questions in the box.

CLEAR VOICE
Noticing challenging sounds

Most learners of English find that some words or sounds are difficult to pronounce. Being aware of the sounds that cause you difficulty is an important part of making sure that other people can understand you.

- What sounds are difficult for me?
- Do these sounds cause communication problems? Do people not understand me because of my pronunciation in these areas?
- If people don't understand me, how can I change my pronunciation to make it clearer?

I find the bl in blue difficult to pronounce.

10 Work in pairs.
Student A: Turn to page 85.
Student B: Use the Useful language to ask Student A questions about these buildings.

Júzcar, a village in Spain.

Useful language Asking questions about famous buildings

When was it built? / When were they built?
What's it made of? / What are they made of?
Why was it built? / Why were they built?
How has it been used? / How have they been used?
What interesting things have been done there?
Can the building(s) be visited by the public?

11 Work in pairs.
Student A: Use the Useful language to ask Student B questions about this building.
Student B: Turn to page 85.

The Blue House, South Korea.

12 Work in pairs. Discuss the questions.
1 Do you know any other buildings that are famous for their colour?
2 Colours are sometimes associated with feelings. For you, what is blue associated with?
3 What colours are considered lucky? Happy? Sad?

10C The internet of senses

LESSON GOALS
- Talk about technology and the senses
- Practise collaborative listening
- Practise making predictions
- Reflect on ways of correcting pronunciation mistakes

SPEAKING

1 Work in pairs. If you could improve one sense, which one would you choose? Why?

VOCABULARY

2 10.2 Read 'Technology and the senses'. Match the words in bold (1–10) with these definitions (a–j). Then listen to check.

a relating to or involving technology b tube-shaped pieces of equipment that allow us to see things that are far away c make something go further d small devices that are worn inside the ear to make sounds louder e spoken language
f the ability to see g pleasant smells
h a new way of doing things that changes a situation i an environment produced by a computer j feelings

Go to page 75 for the Vocabulary reference.

3 Which of the technological solutions in the infographic have you used?

LISTENING AND GRAMMAR

4 10.3 Look at the Listening skill box. Listen to the first part of a talk about 'the internet of senses' and make notes about topics 1–2. Then compare your notes with a partner. Did you hear the same information?

LISTENING SKILL
Collaborative listening

Often when you listen, you don't hear or understand everything. Different people may hear and understand different things. Sharing information can help you understand more about the topic. When you listen collaboratively:
- Focus on the things you think you understand.
- Make brief notes.
- Compare notes with a partner to confirm or add to your own notes.

1 Technology we use now
2 Technology we will use in the future

TECHNOLOGY AND THE SENSES

Technology has been used for hundreds of years to make life easier and to improve or [1]extend our senses. This timeline shows the history of several specialized sense-extending [2]technological solutions – some that many of us use every day.

late 1200s

Eyeglasses improve problems with [3]eyesight.

late 1800s

The telephone sends [5]speech over long distances.

early 2000s

[7]Scents can be sent over the internet.

2020s

The 'internet of senses' is the latest [9]development in the effort to make our senses reach further.

early 1600s

[4]Telescopes allow us to begin looking into space.

1950s

Electronic [6]hearing aids improve life for deaf people.

2010s

Apps are made that can recognize faces and read [8]emotions.

[10]Virtual reality can make the brain believe we're in a different world.

5 10.4 Now listen to a conversation about some of the ideas from the talk. Answer the questions. Then compare your answers with a partner.

1 What do the speakers think about the predictions from the talk in Exercise 4?
2 What idea related to shopping do they talk about?

6 Which sentence is more certain: a or b? How do you know? Read the Grammar box to check your answer.

a We will be able to use our senses online.
b You might be able to taste a meal.

GRAMMAR Making predictions

Use the modal verbs will (not) / could / may (not) / might (not) + infinitive to make predictions about the future.
Use will to talk about something likely. Use could, may or might to talk about something possible.
Use will not to talk about something impossible.
What developments will we see in the future?
This could allow us to use our sense of touch by wearing a glove.
Of course, we won't be able to do things like try clothes on.
You can also use that clauses to show that you aren't 100% sure about a prediction.
It's also possible that we'll taste things online.*
It's unlikely that everyone will be able to use it.*

Go to page 82 for the Grammar reference.

7 Complete the predictions (1–6) with these words.

It's possible that It's unlikely that might probably won't will won't

How likely? 100% … 0%

1 We _____ be able to smell a flower over the internet.
2 _____ a shopper will be able to feel products online.
3 You _____ be able to taste cake online.
4 _____ we'll be able to try clothes on online.
5 Virtual reality _____ be in everyone's home soon.
6 We _____ be able to travel back in time using the internet.

PRONUNCIATION AND SPEAKING

8 Look at the Clear voice box. Answer questions 1–2.

CLEAR VOICE
Correcting pronunciation mistakes

When you communicate, sometimes you make a pronunciation error and need to repeat information or change your pronunciation to help other people understand.
A: I like the idea of drying clothes online.
B: Drying clothes … ?
A: Trying – t – trying on clothes online. But I think it's unlikely.
When you correct a mistake:
- Don't worry too much. Mistakes are a natural part of communication.
- Notice the word or sound that causes confusion.
- Try saying it again in a different way.
- Try emphasizing the sound you're trying to correct.
- Remember: Mistakes can help you identify areas where you need to improve.

1 Can you think of a time when someone didn't understand you because of your pronunciation?
2 What happened? Did you correct the mistake? If so, how?

9 Look at the information. Choose three of the predictions and say how likely you think they are.

Researchers at Ericsson, the mobile phone company, asked 7,600 people around the world what they believe technology will be like in the near future. Here's what people said.

In the near future, we may be able to …
- think of where we want to go to and immediately see a map using special glasses – 59%
- see through walls with special glasses – 56%
- wear a device that sends sound directly to the brain without using our ears – 51%
- go on digital adventure holidays using virtual reality – 43%

I think it's unlikely that we'll be able to see through walls in the near future. We might be able to do that in fifty years' time.

10D Listening to people's problems

LESSON GOALS
- Learn about different ways of listening
- Consider ways of listening to people's problems
- Practise asking questions that develop thinking

SPEAKING

1 Work in pairs. Look at the old English nursery rhyme A wise old owl. Answer the questions.

1 Why do you think the owl spoke less when he heard more?
2 Do you know of any sayings in your language that describe the importance of listening?

2 10.5 Fabio is listening to Beyza's problem. Listen to their conversation. In pairs, answer the questions.

1 How well do you think Fabio is listening? Why do you think that?
2 Do you think Fabio could listen in a different way?

3 10.6 Listen to this alternative conversation between Fabio and Beyza. In pairs, answer the questions.

1 What did Fabio do differently in this version?
2 How does Beyza respond to Fabio in this version?
3 In which version do you think Fabio demonstrates active listening skills? Why?

4 Work in pairs. Discuss the questions.

1 Have you ever had conversations with people who don't listen the way you want them to? What did they do? How did it make you feel?
2 What do you think people should do in order to be better listeners?

A wise old owl

A wise old owl lived in an oak.
The more he heard, the less he spoke.
The less he spoke, the more he heard.
Why aren't we all like that wise old bird?

MY VOICE

5 ▶ 10.2 Watch the video about listening. Answer the questions.

1 In what ways can listening well help people?
2 What are we really saying when we give advice without truly listening?
3 What are two ways we can help the other person develop their thinking?

6 Work in pairs. Look at the Communication skill box. Which of these do you think are more difficult for you to do? Why?

COMMUNICATION SKILL
Listening to people's problems

When people come to you to talk about their problems, you should:

- listen with your full attention and without judgement.
- avoid interrupting and jumping in with advice.
- allow them the silence to think and develop their thoughts.
- ask questions that allow them to explore the problem and their feelings.

7 Work in pairs. Look at situations 1–4. Which of the Communication skill tips are Klaus, Shilpa, Faruq and Tasya not following? What do you think might be the impact of what these 'listeners' are saying?

1 Diego is telling Klaus about his relationship problems. Klaus regularly jumps in to agree with Diego, saying 'Yes you're right, I've always thought that she was a difficult person.'
By constantly agreeing with Diego, Klaus is showing his support. But he's also blocking Diego from seeing things from a different perspective.
2 Gloria is talking about her money problems. Shilpa has never had money problems before and says, 'I don't know why you don't try and save more. I think we're all responsible for managing our own finances properly.'
3 Meili is upset and starts crying as she talks to Faruq about her difficulties with her colleagues. Faruq says, 'Don't be upset. They're not worth getting upset over.'
4 Eryk is worried about his new job and tries to talk about his worries with Tasya. Tasya keeps saying things like 'You need to believe in yourself more' and 'You're better than you think you are.'

SPEAKING

8 Work in pairs. Look at the Useful language box. What kind of questions do you often ask when you're listening? Which of these questions have you asked before?

Useful language Asking questions when listening to people's problems

Is it always (urgent / difficult / like this)? Can you think of a time when it wasn't?
What makes you think that?
What's stopping you from (doing those things)?
What do you need to do to make that happen?
What haven't you tried yet?
Who can help you?
What do you need to change for things to work?
What's the worst thing that could happen?

9 OWN IT! Work in pairs. Take turns to choose an option (a or b). When someone is talking, try not to interrupt or give advice. When appropriate, use the Communication skill tips and the Useful language to help the speaker develop their thinking.

a Roleplay a situation from Exercise 7 or invent a different problem that you might have. Include your own details about this imaginary problem.
b Use this opportunity to reflect on your English learning journey. Answer the following questions:
- What's going well with your English learning journey? What successes have you had recently?
- What difficulties do you have with learning English?
- What would increase your motivation for learning English?

10 Work in small groups. Discuss the questions.

1 When doing Exercise 9, what did you find the most difficult to do when you were listening? How did the use of silence work for the speakers?
2 When listening to people's problems, when should you give advice? When do you think it's better to hold back advice?

10E That's when I saw the leopard

LESSON GOAL
- Practise bringing a story to life using the senses
- Practise using time expressions
- Write an anecdote

SPEAKING

1 Work in pairs. Discuss the questions.

1 What memories do you have connected with a taste – the first time you tasted a certain food or a flavour that is connected with a special time or place for you?
2 Are there any smells that remind you of your childhood or some other special time or place?
3 Do you have any favourite sounds – waves on the ocean? Birds singing? A certain type of music?

NATIONAL GEOGRAPHIC EXPLORER

2 Read Prasenjeet Yadav's anecdote below. Answer the questions.

1 What did Prasenjeet see?
2 Why didn't he take many photos?
3 How did the experience end?

3 What expressions does Prasenjeet use to indicate the order that things happened in?

That's when …,

4 Look at the Writing skill box. Find an example of 'showing' in Prasenjeet's anecdote for each 'telling' sentence (1–5).

WRITING SKILL
Showing instead of telling

When you write about an experience, you can use the five senses to show your readers what you're talking about rather than just telling them. For example:

Telling	Showing
I felt cold.	The cold had started to bite my skin.

1 I was tired from walking.
2 I felt cold.
3 The leopard and I both relaxed.
4 A noisy car came.
5 The leopard ran away.

A favourite memory

It was a morning in February 2018 in India's Spiti Valley. I'd walked for more than an hour, alone in the snow with my heavy gear on my back. The -20°C air had started to bite my skin. That's when I saw the beautiful snow leopard resting very close to the road, a little below me. I could smell his wild animal scent when the breeze blew in my direction. He kept his eye on me but didn't seem bothered. As I sat down, the leopard rested his chin on his front legs. He was comfortable and that gave me confidence.

I wanted to take photos, but every time I did the leopard heard the click of the camera and looked at me. I didn't want to disturb him, so I didn't take many. After a while, I heard the complaining sound of a car's engine as it drove through the snow. The leopard heard it, immediately got up and disappeared silently down into the valley. Then the driver stopped and asked me why I was sitting in the snow in the middle of nowhere. I couldn't feel my legs because of the cold and asked for help getting up. I told the driver my story and he was kind enough to give me a lift back to my camp, where I sat peacefully enjoying the fact that I'd finally seen a snow leopard up close.

– Prasenjeet Yadav

WRITING TASK

5 Think of a memory you'd like to write about. Make notes in at least three categories.

Things I could …

see: bright sunshine

hear: _____

smell: _____

taste: _____

feel: _____

6 Choose three things that you noted down in Exercise 5. For each one, write a sentence that shows rather than tells your experience.

bright sunshine: The hot sun cooked the land and made me almost close my eyes to protect them.

7 Work in pairs. Explain your memory and share your sentences from Exercise 6.

8 WRITE Write about a memory of your own. Use Prasenjeet's anecdote as a model and the sentences you wrote in Exercise 6. Use the Useful language to help you.

Useful language Time expressions

That's when …
As …
Every time …
After a while, …
Immediately, …
Then, …
Finally, …

9 CHECK Use the checklist. Your anecdote …

- ☐ says where and when the experience happened.
- ☐ includes details about the experience.
- ☐ uses the senses to 'show' the memory.
- ☐ uses time expressions to say when things happened.

10 REVIEW Work in pairs. Read your partner's anecdote. Discuss the questions.

1 What does your partner's anecdote 'show' you?
2 What senses does it describe?
3 What questions does it make you want to ask?

Go to page 72 for the Reflect and review.

8 Essentials Pages 34–45

1 Look at the goals from Unit 8. How confident do you feel about them? Write the letters a–f in the table.

a Recognize ellipsis in an article
b Discuss the environmental impact of clothes shopping c Describe different types of food d Activate vocabulary before listening e Understand different ways of giving and receiving feedback
f Write a blog post about essential skills

I feel confident	I need to improve

2 Tell a partner …

1 if the relative clause in this sentence is defining or non-defining, and how you know.
I have so many clothes which I haven't worn, so I'm giving them to my sister.
2 five adjectives to describe food.
3 how a sandwich is related to giving and receiving feedback.

3 Think about the goals you said you need to work on to achieve in Exercise 1. Work in pairs. Discuss one way to practise and achieve each goal.

To activate vocabulary before listening, I can look at the topic and predict the kind of words I might hear.

9 Taking a break Pages 46–57

1 Look at the goals from Unit 9. How confident do you feel about them? (1 = very confident, 4 = not confident at all)

☐ Understand contrast in an article
☐ Talk about imagined past situations
☐ Talk about holidays
☐ Listen for specific information in a conversation
☐ Learn to deal with unexpected behaviours
☐ Write a formal email of complaint

2 Work in pairs. Discuss the questions.

1 What are some words or phrases to indicate contrast?
2 What are three words or phrases for giving advice?
3 What tips would you give someone to help them write a formal email of complaint?

3 Think about one of the goals you want to achieve from Exercise 1. Complete sentences 1–3 with your own ideas. Then ask a partner to suggest other ways to achieve the goal and complete sentence 4.

1 The goal I want to achieve is …
2 To achieve this goal, I can …
3 Some online resources I can use to achieve this goal are …
4 My partner's advice to achieve this goal is … and …

Reflect and review

10 The senses Pages 58–69

1 Look at the goals from Unit 10. Work in pairs. Tell your partner how confident you feel about each goal. Where possible, give examples of how you can use this goal outside of the classroom.

- Paraphrase ideas in an article
- Learn about language and colour
- Use the passive voice
- Make predictions
- Listen to people's problems
- Write about a memory

2 Write one true sentence about yourself and one false sentence. Choose from these topics.

- A prediction you have about your own future
- A problem someone has shared with you
- A memory you have from your childhood

Then share your sentences with a partner. Can they work out which sentence is true and which is false?

3 Think about the goals in Exercise 1. Choose one goal you need to achieve. Draw a mind map with things you will do to make this happen. Then share your mind map with a partner.

6B Present perfect continuous

Present perfect continuous

- Use the present perfect continuous to talk about past actions or states which are connected to the present.
  I've been working in the business district for five years.
  He hasn't been living next door for long.
  Have you been waiting for me?*
- You can also use the present perfect continuous to talk about an action that began in the past, is still continuing in the present and might continue into the future.
  I've been studying English for two years.
  She's been reading her book all morning.
- Use the present perfect continuous to focus on the duration of an activity and to say how long.
  We've been living in Canada for the past ten years.
  Joaquín has been working in the sales department since February.
- Compare this to the present perfect simple, which describes a completed action.
  I think I've read that book too. (= at an unspecified time in the past)
- You can also use the present perfect continuous to talk about a recently completed action you can see evidence of.
  Have you been shopping? You've got loads of bags!*
  I've just been running, so I'm really tired.
- Form the present perfect continuous with have/has + been + -ing form.
  Tatiana's been watching a film.
  Matt hasn't been working very hard today.
- Form a question by changing the position of the subject and have/has.
  Has she been doing her homework?*
  Have they been telling people your news?*

Time expressions

- Use for with the present perfect continuous to talk about duration.
  He's been cooking for hours!

7 My sister has a job interview today. She _____ (prepare) for it for weeks.
8 _____ you _____ (paint)? You've got some paint on your shirt!

6C Describing movement

Verb of movement + adverb

- Use a verb of movement + adverb of manner to say how someone or something is moving. You can use the adverb after the verb, or at the end of the sentence.
  Bara dances beautifully.
  He's trying to drive, but he's doing it very slowly!
- Other verbs of movement are: catch, carry, climb, dive, drop, follow, go, hit, hold, knock, leave, fetch, jog, jump, lift, move, open, pick up, play, push, put down, run, swim, throw, turn.
  She opened the box quickly.
  Kris hit the ball hard.
- You can form an adverb by adding -ly to the end of an adjective.
  slow → slowly bad → badly
  quick → quickly
- If an adjective ends in -y, remove it and add -ily.
  happy → happily noisy → noisily easy → easily
- Some adjectives do not change. The adjective form is the same as the adverb.
  fast → fast straight → straight hard → hard

Verb of movement + preposition

- Use a verb of movement + preposition to describe the direction something or someone is moving in.

He jumped over the wall.

We went through the forest to get to the lake.

They were walking by the river.

He went across the road.

I kept trying to walk away from her.

They were walking towards each other.

Verb of movement + adverb + preposition

- Use a verb of movement + adverb + preposition to say the way the action happened and in which direction.

They went quickly into their house.
He jogged slowly through the park.
She kicked the ball straight towards the goal.

2 Put the words in the correct order.

1 walked / Baris / quickly / the tunnel / through
2 towards / saw / she / her friends / walking / the shopping mall
3 swam / Angelica / very fast / and / won the race
4 he / the wall / jumped / the neighbour's house / to / over
5 Lois / by / the harbour / jogged / every morning
6 must / carefully / drive / in / you / the city centre

UNIT 7

7B Talking about the future

Be going to

- Use be going to + infinitive to talk about future intentions and plans that you've already made.
  I'm going to go travelling next year.
  He's not going to reply to that email.
  Are you going to meet each other next weekend?*
- You can also use be going to + infinitive to make predictions about something that seems likely or certain based on evidence.
  It's going to rain this afternoon.
  She's going to pass this exam; she did really well in the practice test.
- To form a yes/no question, use be + subject + going to + infinitive.
  Is he going to meet us there?*
  Are they going to send you their details?*
- To form a wh-question, use question word + be + subject + going to + infinitive.
  When are we going to pick up the new car?*
  Where is she going to take the exam?*

Present continuous

- Use the present continuous to talk about arrangements and plans in the future which you've already made some preparation for.
  I'm meeting Yasna at the airport tomorrow. (= the speaker has already arranged this plan with Yasna)
  Olga's taking the train to Moscow this afternoon. (= Olga has already bought her ticket)

> Remember!
> Form the present continuous with be + -ing form.

Will

- Use will + infinitive to talk about facts in the future.
  I'll be 40 next month.
  We won't know our exam results until October.

> Remember!
> The short form of will not is won't.

- Use will + infinitive to make predictions about the future.
  He'll have a great time camping.
  I'm sure you won't regret it!

Grammar reference

- Use will + infinitive for things you decide to do at the time of speaking.
  A: Mr Wu is busy at the moment. B: It's fine, I'll wait*.*
  Oh! We're running out of bread, so I won't eat this slice.
- You can also use will + infinitive to make offers and promises.
  Gina will help you plan the party.
  I won't tell anyone – I promise!
- To form a yes/no question, change the position of will and the subject.
  Will you pick me up from work?
  Will Marek want to come with us?
- To form a wh-question, use question word + will + subject + infinitive.
  When will you hear about the job?
  Where will we meet*?*

1 Find and correct one mistake in each sentence.

1 We're going plan our budget for our trip.
2 I heard it will going to be a full moon tonight.
3 I'm will fly to Beijing next Monday.
4 It looks like it's will be a nice day for a barbecue.
5 You'll having an amazing time in Berlin. It's a great city.
6 Honza will remember to call us when he arrives?
7 We meeting a financial planner next week to discuss our mortgage.
8 Why you're going to accept the job with the lower salary?

7C Verb patterns with infinitive or -ing

Verb + infinitive with to

- Some verbs are followed by an infinitive with to.
  I decided to reduce my hours at work, so I have more time for myself.
  I plan to move out of my parents' house soon.
- Common verbs include afford, agree, appear, arrange, choose, decide, expect, hate, hope, learn, need, offer, plan, prepare, promise, seem and want.
  Do you want to meet for dinner?
  You seem to be busy. Let's talk later.

Verb + -ing form

- Some verbs are followed by an -ing form. When an -ing form is used in this way, it's also called a gerund.
  I enjoy camping in the summer.
  You should avoid going this way. I think the road's closed.
- Common verbs include admit, avoid, consider, discuss, dislike, (don't) mind, enjoy, fancy, finish, keep, mention, practise, prefer, recommend, spend time and suggest.
  I often spend time sitting in the garden with a book.
  I suggest working out your expenses to find out what you can save.

Verb + infinitive or -ing

- Some verbs can be followed by either an infinitive with to or an -ing form with no change in meaning.
- These verbs include begin, continue, like, love, prefer and start.
  Before you start to sing / singing*, you need to warm up your voice.*
  I prefer to buy / buying things I need rather than things I want.
- Some verbs can be followed by either an infinitive with to or an -ing form, but the meaning changes.
- These verbs include forget, remember, stop and try.
  I tried to bake you a cake. (= I made an effort but it was difficult.)
  I tried baking you a cake instead of buying one. (= I did it to see if it would be good or not.)
  I stopped the car to check my email. (= I interrupted the action of driving to read the email.)
  I stopped checking my email after I left the office. (= I stopped this activity completely.)

  a continue making ☐ b continue to make ☐

UNIT 8

8B Defining and non-defining relative clauses

- Relative clauses give information about a person, place or thing.
- Relative pronouns introduce relative clauses. Use who for people, which for things, where for places and whose for possessives (to mean of who/which).
  That's the designer who made that dress.
  Those are the companies which make these cheap clothes.
  This is the house where I grew up.
  Do you know the girl whose phone was stolen?

Defining relative clauses

- Use a defining relative clause to give extra information that is essential for understanding the person, place or thing you're talking about.
  That's the couple who bought our old sofa from us.
  This is the restaurant where we had that horrible meal.
- You can replace who and which with that.
  There are many people who/that prefer buying second-hand clothes.
  Could you pass me that t-shirt which/that is hanging behind the door?
- In a defining relative clause, you can leave out the relative pronoun who, which or that when it refers to the object of the verb.
  She is someone (who/that) people admire. (subject = people, object = she)
  That's the book (which/that) I bought for my sister. (subject = I, object = the book)
- You can't leave out the relative pronouns where or whose.
  This is the stadium where my favourite team play.
  NOT ~~This is the stadium my favourite team play.~~
  He's an actor whose mum was also famous.
  NOT ~~He's an actor mum was also famous.~~

Non-defining relative clauses

- Use a non-defining relative clause to give extra information in a sentence. The sentence would still make sense if you removed it.
  That dress, which she made herself, is so beautiful.
  Mr Ruda, who taught maths, has left the school.
- Use commas to separate a non-defining relative clause from the main part of the sentence.
  Those clothes, which you bought online, are so lovely.
  My sister, who lives in South Africa, works as a chef.
- You can't use that in non-defining relative clauses.
  My friend Khalid, who I went to school with, has just moved in next door.
  NOT ~~My friend Khalid, that I went to school with, has just moved in next door.~~
- In non-defining relative clauses, you can't leave out the relative pronouns.
  My brother, who you met last week, has six children.
  NOT ~~My brother, you met last week, has six children.~~
  My neighbour, whose brother I work with, has sold her house.
  NOT ~~My neighbour, brother I work with, has sold her house.~~

1 Choose the correct option to complete the sentences.

1 I found a new job which / where allows me to work from home.
2 The fried rice whose / that I ordered is very spicy.
3 The building, which / who was built in 1789, is the most beautiful place in the city.
4 I'm looking for someone whose / who surname is Yoon.
5 This is the shop where / which I bought that lovely second-hand dress.
6 That chef, who / whose makes the town's famous buttery pancakes, is well-known.

8C Comparatives

Adverbs

- Use comparative adverbs to make comparisons between two verbs, adjectives or phrases.
- With adverbs ending in -ly, use more/less + adverb.
  This fryer cooks food more quickly than an oven does.
  Can you talk less loudly on the phone in a public place, please?
- With short adverbs that don't end in -ly, use adverb + -er.
  Owen runs faster than anyone else in the team.
  Sit up straighter.
- Use much, a lot, a little and slightly to make adverbs stronger or weaker. They explain how big the difference between two things is.
  You drive much better than I do!
  He explains things a lot more slowly than other teachers.

Adjectives

- Use comparative adjectives to make comparisons between two people or things.

Remember!
To form comparative adjectives:

One syllable ➔ + -er	longer, higher
Ending in -y, remove -y and add -ier	happier, angrier
Two or more syllables ➔ more + adjective	more exciting, more interesting
Irregular	good ➔ better, bad ➔ worse, far ➔ further

Grammar reference

- Use much / a lot + comparative adjective to say there is a big difference.
  He drives a much faster car than I do!
  His jacket is a lot more expensive than mine.
- Use a little / not much / slightly + comparative adjective to say there is a small difference.
  Science is a little more interesting for me than maths.
  The number of sales has been slightly lower than we expected.

More or less the same

- Use more or less the same (as) to say something is almost the same or equal.
  She's more or less the same age as me.
  Pierogi are more or less the same as jiaozi.

(Not) as* + adjective + *as

- You can use as + adjective + as to say two things are equal.
  Today's just as hot as yesterday.
  This jerk chicken is just as spicy as I make it at home.
- Use not as + adjective + as to say two things are not equal.
  The chocolate here isn't as sweet as in my country. (= The chocolate in my country is sweeter than the chocolate here.)
  This cake isn't as fruity as I expected. (= I expected the cake to be fruitier.)

2 Match the beginning of the sentences (1–6) with the endings (a–f).

1 You're a lot more
2 Lara paints more
3 I don't think you're as
4 I think we've spent more
5 Ozlem needs to take things less 6 Amanda works just as a seriously sometimes.

b beautifully than I ever could.
c old as I am!
d hard as everyone else in the team.
e experienced as a chef than you say on your CV.
f or less the same amount on our shopping trip today.

UNIT 9

9B Third conditional

- Use the third conditional to talk about the consequences of an unreal or imaginary situation in the past. The situation and the result did not happen, so cannot be changed.
  If I had gone on holiday, I would've been able to relax.* (= I didn't go on holiday, so I couldn't relax.)
  We would have shown you around the city if you had stayed with us. (= You didn't stay with us, so we didn't show you around the city.)
- To form the third conditional, use If + past perfect, … would (not) have + past participle.
  If I had taken the job, I would've had to travel a lot for work.*
  If she had picked us up, we wouldn't have been late.*

Remember!
The past perfect is had + past participle.

- You can swap the order of the clauses. This doesn't change the meaning.
  If you'd told me, I would have come on holiday with you. ➔ I would have come on holiday with you if you'd told me.
  If he'd helped me, I would have been able to put the tent up faster! ➔ I would have been able to put the tent up faster if he'd helped me!

Remember!
When the If clause comes first, use a comma before the second clause.
If we had left earlier, we would have been on time.

- You can use other modal verbs instead of would to change the certainty of a result.
- Use might to mean maybe.
  If I had known about the party, I might have gone. (= I didn't know about it, so I didn't go.)
  If I had gone to university, I might have had a different job.
- Use could to mean something was a possibility.
  If I had put more effort in, I could have been a professional dancer. (= I didn't put effort in, so I didn't become a professional dancer.)
  I could have fixed your laptop for you if you had told me it was broken.

1 Match the beginning of the sentences (1–8) with the endings (a–h).

1 If our first flight had taken off on time,
2 He wouldn't have gone travelling
3 If we'd had more money when we were younger,
4 If I'd been born in the UK,
5 We would have rented a car
6 If we'd bought tickets to the show a few weeks earlier,
7 We could have had a beach picnic
8 If I'd booked the accommodation, a if we'd known the roads were safe to drive on.

b we might have had a better view of the stage.
c we wouldn't have missed our next one.
d if he'd taken that job.
e I wouldn't have had to learn how to speak English.
f I could have found something more luxurious than this!
g if the weather had been better today.
h we might have tried to see the world a bit more.

9C Giving advice

- There are many different ways to give advice in English. You can use should / shouldn't + infinitive.
  You should go to the dentist if you have toothache.
  He shouldn't be at work if he's ill.

Remember!
Modal verbs such as should are never followed by to.
You should ~~to~~ do your homework for tomorrow.

- You can also use ought to + infinitive. It cannot be used in a negative way.
  You ought to get some travel insurance for your trip.
  NOT ~~You ought to not get some travel insurance for your trip.~~
- You can use a second conditional with If I were you, I would/ wouldn't + infinitive. You are imagining yourself in the other person's position or situation and saying what you would or wouldn't do.
  If I were you, I would take that job offer.*
  If I were you, I'd tell her the truth.*
- You can swap the order of the clauses. This doesn't change the meaning.
  If I were you, I'd book the tickets early. → I'd book the tickets early if I were you.
- You can use suggest/recommend + (not) -ing to give more indirect advice.
  I suggest saving a bit more money for the holiday.
  He recommends booking that hotel. He says it's lovely.
- You can also use suggest/recommend (that) + person + infinitive.
  The waiter recommended I try the ramen noodles.
  He suggested that we book a room on the top floor as it has better views.

1 Complete the sentences with these words.

eat if making ought pack should that travelling

1 You _____ call him to apologize for what you said.
2 You _____ to drive more slowly in this weather.
3 My brother suggested _____ a reservation for dinner tonight.
4 Ciara suggested _____ I email the airline about my lost luggage.
5 I would see a doctor _____ I were you.
6 This blog recommends _____ around Thailand in December.
7 I shouldn't _____ too much now because I'm going out for dinner later.
8 You ought to _____ a sleeping bag if you're going camping.

UNIT 10

10B Passives

- In active sentences, the focus is on the person or thing that does the action (the agent). Form active sentences with subject + verb (+ object).
  I developed a new technology.
  He left the window open.
- In passive sentences, the focus is on the action and not who or what did it. This is because the action is not important, not obvious or unknown.
- Form passive sentences with be + past participle. Only the form of be changes to make the tense. The passive can be used in any tense.

present simple	am/are/is + past participle	Flour is used for baking.
present continuous	am/are/is being + past participle	The virtual-reality headset is being used by the students.
past simple	was/were + past participle	The telephone was created in the late 1800s.
past continuous	was/were being + past participle	The kitchen was being painted.
present perfect	have/has been + past participle	Hearing aids have been used since the 1950s.
past perfect	had been + past participle	The key had been lost.
future simple	will be + past participle	A new technology will be developed.

- You can also use modals (might, could, etc.) before be + past participle.
  My laptop couldn't be fixed easily.
  The homework should be done by Friday.
- Use the object of an active sentence as the subject in a passive sentence.
  He built a house. (a house = object)
  A house was built.* (a house = subject)
- You can use the passive when you don't want to say who or what does the action. Maybe you don't know, or maybe it isn't important.
  Many people identified the colours as the same. → The colours were identified as the same.
  Someone robbed the jewellery store. → The jewellery store was robbed.

Grammar reference

- Sometimes, you can add who or what did the action by using by + noun at the end of a passive sentence.
  The song was being written by her brother.
  The house will be designed by a famous architect.
- Passives are often used in formal writing.
  When the hearing aid was tested, there was a significant difference in sound.

1 Rewrite the sentences in the correct tense in the passive. Use by where necessary.

1 Somebody fixed the screen on my phone.
_____

2 Fifty people have read my blog post. (by)
_____

3 The cleaner is cleaning the house at the moment.
_____

4 Erdem had already made reservations for dinner. (by)
_____

5 Regina was playing the piano. (by)
_____

6 I will send the email this afternoon.

10C Making predictions

- You can use the modal verbs will (not), may (not), might (not) and could (not) + infinitive to make predictions about the future and to express how sure you are about your prediction.

Likely — Possible — Impossible will — may (not), might (not), could (not) — will not

In ten years, there will be a lot more electric cars on the road. (likely)
In the future, we may have to use our face to access things. (possible)
Technology will not develop enough for people to smell things through a computer. (impossible)

Remember!
Modal verbs such as will, may, might and could are never followed by to.
In a few years, planes might ~~to~~ be quicker than they are today.

- You can also make predictions about the future using that clauses, e.g. It's likely/unlikely that … , It's possible that … , It's certain that … and It's impossible that … .

100% — 0%

certain that — likely that — possible that — unlikely that — impossible that

It's certain that technological changes will continue to happen.* (100%)
It's possible that more people will travel to space.* (50%+)
It's impossible that people will be able to time travel.* (0%)

2 Choose the best option to complete the sentences.

certain impossible likely might possible won't

1 A: I hate traffic. I'd love this taxi to fly over all the other cars!
  B: Well, although it's _____ to do that right now, maybe it will happen in the future.
2 A: We _____ go on holiday this year, but we haven't decided yet. What about you?
  B: No, we _____ be going away because we're moving house and need to save money this year.
3 A: I wish I could control my phone with my mind. That would make everything so much faster!
  B: It's _____ that will be something mobile phones can do one day; they're already developing the technology.
4 A: I met her sister yesterday, so I know what she looks like. I'm _____ that's her.
  B: Yes! It's definitely her! Hi Abi!
5 A: Do you think people will live on the moon one day?
  B: I don't know – it's _____, but I'm not sure.

Cheong Wa Dae – South Korea's Blue House

- Builders built the new main building between 1989 and 1991.
- They used 150,000 traditional blue Korean tiles for the roofs of all the buildings.
- They built it as a home, office and press centre for the president of South Korea.
- The presidents of South Korea have lived and worked in the building since 1991.
- Leaders from all over the world have visited the Blue House.
- Tourists visit parts of the Blue House on official tours.

Count the points your answers got. How many points do you have in total?

1 a – 2; b – 1

2 a – 1; b – 2

3 a – 1; b – 2

4 a – 1; b – 2

5 a – 2; b – 1

If you have eight points or more, you probably have a Whole-to-Part way of looking at things. You usually start by looking at the big picture, the context and the overall idea before focusing on the individual parts. You tend to think that things happen because of situations and things that surround them and people don't always have control over them. You often pay attention to how relationships, e.g. the mother and child, the wheel and the car, affect a situation. You believe that everything is connected and dependent on each other.

If you have seven points or fewer, you probably have a Part-to-Whole way of looking at things. You usually start by looking at the individual parts before thinking about how they work together. You tend to think of things in terms of their categories, e.g. tomatoes and apples are fruit because they have seeds, the wheel and the engine are parts of a car. You often focus on the specifics or the behaviour of a thing, e.g. the function of a wheel or the personality of an individual. You believe that if you can control the individual parts, you can control the whole unit.

Júzcar – Spain's blue village

- Sony Pictures, a film company, painted the village blue in 2011.
- The company used it as a location for filming The Smurfs film.
- The company chose the village because it's famous for mushrooms, which Smurfs love.
- The painters used 4,200 litres of blue paint.
- Sony was going to repaint the village after making the film, but the villagers decided to keep the blue.
- Fans of The Smurfs visit the village.

6.1

Rubén: I was born in Spain. In 2015, I started travelling around the world for two years before moving to Mexico. I immediately felt at home here and decided to stay. I've been living in Mexico for more than three years now and I love it here. The people are very friendly and I've learned so much from them about their history and culture. Because I speak Spanish, it's easy to have conversations, but the Spanish from Spain is very different from Mexican Spanish. I've been practising and I've learned many new words and sayings since I got here. I've been learning a lot about Mexican art too. They have such a variety of art here, from 3,000-year-old pyramids to modern prints. I've also really liked trying the different types of food here. There are so many flavours and colours in every dish! Unlike Spanish food, the food here is very spicy. They have 150 types of chillies! But I'm lucky because my mother has been cooking spicy food for me since I was a child and I love it! I must say, I miss my family and friends back in Europe, but I've been travelling back to visit once a year. That's very important to me.

6.2

Gena: I've been living in Bogotá for about a year and a half, but I've lived in Colombia for more than six years. I'd taken Spanish lessons in school in the US, but when I moved to Ecuador twelve years ago, I needed to put my Spanish into practice. I've been speaking Spanish since then, so I'm quite comfortable speaking in Spanish. I love the feeling of excitement that comes with moving to a new place. I love being surprised by new things – the sights, smells, habits, food, etc. I think one of the difficult things about moving to a new place is that it can be stressful. You have to get to know a new place and it can be easy to get lost. Because I live by myself, it can be lonely sometimes. Occasionally, you wish there was someone to experience all the new things with!

6.6

L = Leonora, Y = Yongsheng

L: Yongsheng, did you see that kid dressed as a lion?
Y: Yeah, she looked so cute!
L: You know, when I was kid, I thought I saw some lions in the woods.
Y: Really?
L: Yeah. It's a funny story, actually.
Y: What happened?
L: Well, I used to live in a suburb close to a large school. And on special occasions, like festivals, kids used to dress up to go to school.
Y: Sounds like fun!
L: On the road going past the school, there were these woods. During the school holidays, I'd cycle into the woods with my friends to play by the river.
Y: Uh huh.
L: One day, we were playing hide and seek – you know that game where one person counts and everyone hides?
Y: Yes! We call it zhuomicang.
L: We call it nascondino in Italian. Anyway, I climbed up a tree. No one could find me. Twenty minutes later, I was still there. That was when I saw the lions! There were these boys dressed up as lions. They were coming from the school. At that time, I didn't know this. I thought they were real lions.
Y: What did you do?
L: I waited for the lions to go away and then I climbed down really quietly to tell my friends. But they'd got tired of looking for me and they'd all gone home!
Y: Without you?! That's terrible!
L: The next day, I tried to tell them I saw three lions and they all just laughed. I was so upset.
Y: Oh Leonora, you poor thing!
L: Thinking about it now, it's kind of amazing how our parents let us go everywhere on our own back then.
Y: Yeah, my parents were the same. I'd walk for thirty minutes to go to my friends' houses. All on my own. Once, I was like eight years old, and one evening, I was walking to my friend's house, when I noticed this cute grey cat behind me. I lived near a market and I thought it was one of the cats that hang around the market stalls … So, there was this cute cat. It looked at me and I smiled at it. Then, I went across the road. And the cat went across the road. I went through a tunnel. The cat went through the tunnel. I jumped over a fence. It also jumped over the fence!
L: Was it following you? Maybe it liked you!
Y: My mother didn't allow me to have any pets, so I didn't want the cat to think I was taking it home with me.
L: So, what did you do?
Y: I kept trying to walk away from it and it kept following me. I walked very quickly towards my friend's house and I saw that it was walking towards the house as well, so I started saying 'No, you can't come with me. Go! Go!' At that point, my friend opened the door and said, 'What are you doing to Wang Wang?'
L: Huh?
Y: The cat was her pet! My friend's pet! I'd never seen her cat before! I didn't even know she had a pet!
L: So it wasn't following you?
Y: No! It was just going home!

Situation A

My bookclub friends are sharing stories about their neighbours. I keep planning what I want to say, but before I get a chance to share my story, the topic of conversation has already moved on to something else.

Situation B

My group at my weekly dance class are arguing about the Spanish Armada. I have no idea if the Armada is an animal or a type of Spanish food.

Situation C

I have a new group of work colleagues and I want to break the ice. But when I try making jokes, everyone looks at me in surprise and they just smile uncomfortably.

Situation D

I'm listening to my classmates talking about football. I think they all speak amazing English and I feel a bit shy about my own English. I know they're going to ask me what I think in a minute.

UNIT 7

7.1

Francisco: In order to keep a good balance between work and family obligations I try to work out a realistic schedule. I try not to work on weekends, when I can spend time with my kids – although I usually work on Sunday evenings.

My plans for the next few months include a trip to Guatemala to visit my father for a few weeks. I also hope to complete an article I'm writing. Later in the year, I look forward to taking a vacation to Guatemala with my children.

We will go there over the December holidays. We're going to go scuba diving. This is something we have done once before. We really had the best time together exploring the sea. I hope this trip will make up for the long time we had to spend apart lately. It's going to be a lot of fun!

Rebecca: In the next few months, I'm taking a few camping trips. It will probably be rainy because Vancouver gets very wet during the fall and winter, so most of the camping I do at that time will be in my car. We're going to put the seats of the car down and sleep in the back. We'll also set up a large covering so that we can cook and hang out outside even if it is raining. Bears are a big concern for me when I go camping, so we'll keep all the food in the car.

I'm also doing a backpacking trip with friends up to a lake high in the mountains of British Columbia. Backpacking means we won't use a car, so we're going to carry all of our gear in our backpacks. The trail will be very steep, so it's going to be pretty difficult! However, the views are going to be amazing at the top.

D = Dan, E = Elsa

D: What's next?

E: I want to talk about money and give some practical financial advice, Dan. I've been doing some research on credit cards and budgets. The question is: How can we avoid getting into trouble with money?

D: That sounds like information a lot of us could use.

E: I think it is. A growing number of people are using credit cards. Research by the World Bank shows that fifty per cent of Germans, sixty per cent of South Koreans, and more than eighty per cent of Canadians use a credit card and the numbers are increasing. A lot of people don't seem to have a balanced budget.

D: Can you explain what you mean by a balanced budget?

E: It's simple. When you earn more than you spend, your budget is balanced. But it's not always easy to achieve.

D: So, what's your advice?

E: Most people would agree that before you begin balancing your budget, you need to have a budget to balance.

D: Makes sense.

E: I recommend starting with a budget for one month. Here's how you do it. First, write down the money you earn – for example your salary. You need to write down the money you spend – in three separate lists.

D: And the three lists are … ?

E: The first list is 'needs'. This is money for your monthly expenses such as your rent or mortgage, bills for electricity, water, gas. It also includes petrol for the car, food and so on.

D: The second list?

E: The second list is 'wants'. These are luxuries – things you enjoy, but don't really need. For instance, meals out in restaurants or going to the cinema.

D: And the final list?

E: The final list is 'savings'. This, of course, is money you don't use each month – money you put in the bank to save for the future. This might be saving for travel in the future, for when you stop working or for other goals. It also includes paying back borrowed money, for example paying off your credit card.

D: So, now we have a budget – we know where our money goes. How do we balance it?

Audioscripts

E: I did some more research for this. Financial experts Elizabeth Warren and Amelia Warren Tyagi developed the fifty–thirty–twenty budget rule.
D: The fifty–thirty–twenty budget rule.
E: It's simple. According to Warren and Tyagi, you should spend fifty per cent of your money on your needs, thirty per cent on your wants and you should put twenty per cent in your savings.
D: Fifty per cent on needs …
E: Thirty per cent on wants …
D: And twenty per cent in savings.
E: Right.
D: That's clear. I like it. But it could be hard for a lot of people.
E: Definitely. If you spend eighty per cent of your salary on your needs, then you only have twenty per cent left. If you're in this situation, I suggest looking at ways to reduce the money you spend on your needs. After that, you can begin to think about saving and buying luxuries.
D: Good advice!

UNIT 8

8.1

Mary: I don't buy clothes very often. In fact, a few years ago, I got so concerned about the clothing industry. The plastic in the materials which make these cheap clothes ends up in our seas and oceans. So I decided not to buy any new clothes for a year. I managed it easily. I wear my clothes for a long time. I've worn the shirt that I wear for fieldwork for about twenty years! I really enjoy finding ways to make my clothes last longer.
The infographic shows us that we currently produce ten new pieces of clothing a year for every person on this planet. It's just not possible that we need so many clothes! There are some people who don't buy many new clothes, like me. And most people around the world can't afford to buy ten new pieces of clothing every year. So that means that there are people out there who are buying hundreds of pieces of clothing every year!
Manufacturers say they make more clothes because people are buying more clothes. And people are buying more clothes because of fast fashion, which is cheap and fashionable.
It's terrible to see that we throw away clothes that have only been worn about seven times. All of these clothes usually end up in landfills, which are areas of land where rubbish is buried. And fast fashion is often made of materials which contain plastic. So every year, millions of pieces of plastic are going into our environment through landfills!
I think there are two things that we can do about clothing waste. We can buy second-hand clothes instead of new clothes, or we can start shopping less but buying better quality clothes. If we spent more on clothes, we'd probably take better care of them and use them more instead of throwing them away. We must remember to reuse and recycle our clothes and protect our planet.

1 I believe people should sell the clothes that they don't use.
2 I can't understand these people who throw away clothes after wearing them once or twice.
3 It's better to give away clothes than to throw them away.

C = Chati, D = Desirée, J = Jamie

C: Desirée, Jamie, have you heard? Pierre is moving to Thailand and he said he's going to pack a suitcase full of French cheese to take with him. He can probably get it more easily in France too.
J: Is it hard to get cheese in Thailand?
C: You can get cheese here, but I guess the cheese in France is not as expensive as the cheese in Thailand.
D: I know how he feels. When I moved here, I brought a bag full of arepa flour.
J: What's arepa?
D: They're like thick pancakes made from flour that's made from cooked corn.
C: Couldn't you use normal flour?
D: You can use the corn flour they use for Mexican tortillas. If you mix yellow and white corn flour, it makes it slightly less bitter. But it's not the same. Making arepas with arepa flour is much better!
C: So, are arepas a typical Venezuelan food?
D: Yes. They're very typical in lots of countries in the region, not just Venezuela. Colombia and Bolivia too … We eat them for breakfast, lunch or dinner. We just put different fillings in it – beans, meat, avocado ... I love cheesy arepas. They're sooo good!
J: I love cheesy foods. I'll happily eat anything cheesy or creamy.
D: Like a creamy dessert?
J: I was thinking more like a warm, creamy Cullen skink.
C: What's Cullen skink?
J: It's a Scottish fish soup. You cook the fish in butter, milk and cream. It's amazing.
C: Sounds tasty! I like anything cooked in butter!
D: When I think of a buttery dish, I think of sweet desserts. I don't immediately think of salty or spicy food.
C: What about Indian butter chicken? Or buttery potatoes?

D: You're right. I guess I've just got sweet desserts on my mind. You say buttery, I think desserts. You say creamy, I think desserts …
J: Creamy desserts are nice too – like a cranachan.
C: A what?
J: A cranachan – it's a creamy Scottish dessert made with strawberries, raspberries and oats.
D: Ooh, nice! What about you, Chati? What food can't you live without?
C: I think for me it has to be sticky rice. We eat a lot of sticky rice in Thailand.
D: Sticky rice is really yummy! What do you have it with?
C: You can have sticky rice with any meat or vegetable. It goes really well with larb.
J: What's larb?
C: Larb is like a minced meat salad. You can use chicken, beef, whatever you like. After you fry the minced meat, you add lime juice, fish sauce, sweet chilli sauce, mint and lots of nice herbs. It's hot, salty, sweet and sour all at the same time.
J: Is that the one you wrap in lettuce?
C: Yes! Have you had it before?
J: I have! In a Laotian restaurant. I didn't know you have it in Thailand too.
C: Yeah, I think the larb in north-east Thailand is more or less the same as the larb in Laos. Did you like it?
J: I did! All those flavours come together so nicely. I've never had it with sticky rice though.
C: I make larb and sticky rice all the time. You should both come over for dinner one day!

UNIT 9

9.3

A = Alessia, B = Bogdan

A: So, Bogdan, you've got two weeks off work next week. What are you going to do with this time?
B: I don't know. All the flights to the popular holiday destinations have been booked up. I think I've left it too late to book anything.
A: If I were you, I'd pack my bags, jump into my car and go on a road trip.
B: Go on a road trip? Where to?
A: Anywhere! Just decide on a direction and start driving!
B: You're kidding.
A: No, I'm serious. Unplanned holidays can be really exciting!
B: How will I know where I'm going?
A: My advice is to just look up a map on your phone, pick a city, maybe even in a different country, and drive in that direction.
B: Don't I need to book my accommodation in advance?
A: You should just take a tent. Then all you need to do is find some camping sites along the way and put up your tent there!
B: Don't you have to book the campsites in advance though?
A: Some people do. But lots of people just turn up without a booking. I think you might need to book if it's a campsite with lots of facilities, like those campsites with their own supermarket, swimming pool, restaurants …
B: I didn't know campsites have their own supermarkets, swimming pools and restaurants!
A: There are all sorts of different campsites these days. I'd just find somewhere simple to put up my tent, like in a field or a forest somewhere.
B: I've never really gone camping before.
A: Really? You ought to try it! It's great fun! You get to sleep under the stars, spend time with nature and get lots of fresh air. It's so relaxing.
B: I'm not sure if I'll like sleeping on the hard ground. It'd be really bad for my back.
A: I suggest getting an air mattress – they're really comfortable. You'll feel like you're in your own bed! And I'd definitely recommend you bring a sleeping bag and a warm blanket. It can get cold at night.
B: Sounds like there's going to be a lot of planning that I'll need to do.
A: Not at all. I'll help you. I have lots of camping equipment that you can borrow.
B: Thanks … but I feel like I'd need to know more about where I'm going and what I'm going to do.
A: Not knowing is part of the adventure, isn't it? You can always speak to the locals when you get there. They will tell you all the best places to visit. Or you could check out websites like Tripadvisor or Trivago. They're quite good for travel recommendations.
B: Yeah, I often use these websites to get ideas when I'm planning a holiday. I think I'm more of a planner. I'm not sure if I'm comfortable with just jumping into my car and driving without a plan in mind.
A: You would hate going on holidays with me then!

9.6

L = Lee, P = Peter

L: So Peter, where are you from?
P: I'm from Haarlem in the Netherlands.
L: I've been to the Netherlands. Do you live there with your family?
P: Yes, I live with my parents.
L: Brothers and sisters?
P: No, I'm an only child.
L: Girlfriend?
P: No, no girlfriend at the moment.
L: What do you do for a living?

Audioscripts

P: I'm a nurse.
L: That's a good job. You help people.
P: Yeah, I love my job.

9.7

I just met this guy called Lee. He was so weird and kind of aggressive. He stood really close to me and kept asking questions that were too personal. He made me feel really uncomfortable. Why did he want to know so much?

UNIT 10

10.1

When English speakers are shown these two colours, they identify both as blue. The one on the left may be called light blue and the one on the right dark blue, but they're seen as two shades of the same colour – they're both blue. However, researchers found that when users of Greek as a first language were asked to identify the colours, they said the colour on the left was ghalazio and the one on the right ble – two different colours. And perhaps more interestingly, it was also discovered that Greek speakers who had lived in the UK for several years and used English regularly became less able to separate ghalazio and ble accurately. The reason? They'd become used to referring to both colours as blue. Their way of seeing had been influenced by using English. Greek isn't the only language with at least two words for blue. The same is true for Russian, Italian, Korean and other languages too.

10.3

We humans use technology to improve and extend our senses every day. Glasses are simple technology to improve our eyesight. For people who can't see, a smartphone app can recognize faces and even read people's emotions. In addition to hearing aids, deaf people can use apps that listen to speech and turn it into writing so they can read it. The internet also extends our senses, allowing us to see and hear people who may be thousands of kilometres away. The technology of the senses is part of our everyday life.

So what's next? What developments will we see in the future?

It's likely that in the next ten years, in addition to seeing and hearing things online, we will also be able to use our other senses online. This could allow us, for example, to use our sense of touch by wearing a glove or using some other device with our hands. Of course, we won't be able to do things like try clothes on, but we may be able to feel the quality of a shirt before we buy it in an online shop.

It's likely that we'll be able to experience the scent of a flower online, or trees, or cold wind in the mountains using a kind of virtual reality that includes the nose and technology for producing scents.

It's also possible that we'll taste things online – your friend might be able to send you the flavour of a delicious fruit, or when you look at your holiday photos, you might experience the flavour of the delicious meal you had.

The technology is improving every day. Online connections between people are becoming more important and our ability to extend our senses is becoming greater.

Now I'd like to look more closely at …

10.4

A: That was an interesting talk. Do you think all of those predictions will come true?
B: I think it's likely that the technology will be developed, but it's unlikely that everyone will be able to use it.
A: What do you mean?
B: You'll need special devices to use the internet of senses – gloves so you can touch things or a computer that produces scents. That stuff will be expensive.
A: Yeah, I guess you're right. I mean, virtual reality is possible now, but it might be a long time before everyone uses it because it costs a lot.
B: Right. Of course it's likely that it will become cheaper. Then more people might buy it.
A: I like the idea of drying clothes online.
B: Drying clothes … ?
A: Trying – t – trying on clothes online. But I think it's unlikely.
B: Yeah, but it would make shopping easier!

10.5

B = Beyza, F = Fabio

F: You said you needed to talk? What's up?
B: I'm just so exhausted. And I feel I need to talk to someone about it.
F: Yeah, I know what you mean. I'm really exhausted too. But, hey you're a strong person, you'll be fine!
B: I haven't been feeling that strong recently. Since I started working from home, I feel like I'm constantly dealing with either the kids or housework or work ...
F: Yeah, I'm exactly the same. I think my boss doesn't trust me working from home. He wants reports and meetings every day to check on what I'm doing.
B: My problem is trying to manage work, and kids and housework at the same time. You know, when I had to go to the office …
F: If I were you, I'd prioritize. Consider what's most urgent and do that first.

B: But when you're managing a home, everything is always urgent. There are always dinners to cook, kids' teeth to brush … It's all so stressful.
F: Don't get stressed. You must teach your kids to do things themselves.
B: That's true. I think the problem is I just always put everybody's needs above my own. And then I feel …
F: Exactly! Don't do that!
B: But I don't want to feel like I'm being a selfish person.
F: You're not selfish! You're one of the most generous people I know!
B: Thanks.
F: Listen, I believe in you.
B: Thanks, Fabio.
F: And you can always come to me when you have a problem, OK?
B: OK.

F: You said you needed to talk? What's up?
B: I'm just so exhausted. And I feel I need to talk to someone about it.
F: Go on, I'm listening.
B: Since I started working from home, I feel like I'm constantly dealing with either the kids or housework or work. You know, when I had to go to the office, I had the journey on the bus to get ready for work or to think about my day. But now I'm just going straight from work to cooking dinners and dealing with the kids.
F: That sounds tough.
B: When you're managing a home, there's always things to do. It never ends. It's all so stressful.
F: Why exactly is it stressful?
B: It's just stressful, isn't it? Looking after kids and working …
F: Hmm …
B: I guess I just feel like everyone's depending on me to do things for them. Everything's always so urgent.
F: Is it always urgent?
B: Not always … You know what I need? I need some time for myself. That makes me a selfish person, doesn't it?
F: What makes you think that?
B: I don't know. Focusing on myself seems like a selfish thing to do … but I need to help myself before I can help others, right?
F: What do you need to do to make that happen?
B: I want to spend more time doing the things I love. Play the guitar, dance the samba, paint some pictures.
F: What's stopping you from doing those things?
B: Time? I guess I can get some help with the housework and the kids and make more time for myself. You know what, maybe I should start small … I used to take the bus to work, I could use this time to take a walk instead. That would give me some time to myself. Thank you, Fabio. You're such a good listener.
F: No, thank you for sharing.
